BROYLES COMES BACK AT MAYOR WOODWARD AND MAYOR AT HIM

Recorder Says Mayor Is Defeating Justice and Impeding Officers in Their Attempts to Check Crime

MAYOR STYLES BROYLES "A POLITICAL ACCIDENT"

Says Recorder Plays Golf on Sunday and Then Fines Boys for Their Sunday Baseball Games

Another direct statement by Recorder Nash R. Broyles, Friday morning, of his opinion of Mayor Woodward's clemency toward criminals convicted in police court, was issued by the recorder in written, coupled with a verbal comment that the mayor "tells so many falsehoods that it would be futile to attempt to answer them."

In his new expression, Recorder Broyles apologizes to the hog which he contrasted with the mayor Thursday, in says that the mayor knows less about law than a hog does about political economy.

Following is the recorder's written statement:

"I care nothing for the mayor's abuse. Condemnation from such a character should be considered praise. But when he says that the court of appeals on May 23, 1913, reversed me in ten cases and sustained me in seven, he tells such a ridiculous and absurd falsehood that I now apologize to the hog to which I referred yesterday when I said that the mayor knows less about law than the hog knows about economy.

"The idea of the court of appeals passing in one day on seventeen cases appealed from the recorder's court of Atlanta! The records of that court will show that on the average there are not seventeen cases a year carried from my court to the court of appeals, and they will show also that that court has sustained me in ten cases where it has reversed me in one.

"But the mayor is, as usual, trying to side-step the issue between us. That issue is not my ability as a lawyer or a judge. I am content to let my record speak for me. The issue is that the mayor, in protecting and pardoning the habitual and confirmed criminals of every city, is obstructing and defeating justice in our courts and impeding the officers of the law in their attempt to check crime in our city; and that is the issue on which the people at the next election will call him to account."

WHAT MAYOR SAYS.

"Broyles is a political accident and no one takes him seriously," is a striking sentence from a statement which Mayor James G. Woodward claims to be the last he is going to make in the wordy controversy between himself and Judge Nash R. Broyles of the recorder's court.

Following the recorder's statement that the mayor doesn't know as much about law as a hog does about political economy, and that he (the mayor) is a menace to society, Mayor Woodward has delivered what he says is his final reply.

The mayor attacks the recorder's record as a jurist and says that Judge Broyles is sore at him (Woodward) because the court of appeals has reversed many of his decisions. He points to the record of May 23, this year and says that on that date the court of appeals reversed Judge Broyles in ten cases, sustaining him on seven others.

"UNDERWORLD CZAR."

The mayor repeats the accusation that the recorder is trying to rule the underworld like a little czar.

Referring to Judge Broyles' remarks about his ignorance of the law, the mayor says that he must appeal to a more competent judge.

"I have never heard of him being much of a lawyer in his lawyer days," the mayor says, "and I don't think he has improved any of late.

"From the bottom of my heart I am sorry for him," continued the mayor. "If it is possible for him to get a little free advertising he sends for me and exploiting his own ability as a fly trainer. I have no kick to offer.

"I think, however, that Judge Broyles should practice what he preaches. I understand that he plays golf on Sunday and on Monday will fine a youngster who is picked up on the streets for playing baseball. Really, Broyles deserves the sympathy of the people."

DOCTORS HAD WRANGLE OVER PAINTER'S VISCERA

Insurance Company's Doctor Claims He Was Denied Examination

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

BALTIMORE, Md., July 18.—How the medical men and chemists became so involved in argument over the matter of allowing Dr. Charles J. Carroll, representing the United States Fidelity and Guaranty company, to be present at the examination of the viscera of the late Edward O. Painter, the millionaire fertilizer manufacturer of Jackson, that they all finally gave up the fight and called in their lawyers was told on the witness stand this morning by Dr. Carroll at the hearing of the Painter suit now before Judge Duffy in the circuit court.

Dr. Carroll said he made repeated efforts to be present at the examination of the specimens of Mr. Painter's viscera, but that he was refused permission, and the only satisfaction he could get from Drs. Jerry and Boyd, who had assumed authority in the matter, was that they offered him small parts of the specimens to enable him to make a private examination.

He refused this offer on the grounds that if any of the parts were taken away not enough would be left to enable either side to make a thorough test.

SENATOR HOKE SMITH RENDERS AN ACCOUNT OF HIS STEWARDSHIP

Speaking to Georgia Legislators, and Through Them to People, He Reviews Efforts and Accomplishments

SPEECH WELL RECEIVED BY A LARGE AUDIENCE

He Predicts Early Passage of Tariff Bill, Praises Currency Program, and Pays Tribute to President Wilson

To an audience which packed the floor and galleries of the house of representatives' hall, Senator Hoke Smith Friday at noon delivered an address in which he rendered a comprehensive account of his stewardship. He had been invited to address the general assembly and almost every member was present to hear him speak. Although his address was directed to the legislators it was intended to also be a report to the people of Georgia.

Long before 12 o'clock the people began to arrive to hear Senator Smith's address, and in advance of the hour fixed the galleries were filled, with every seat taken and many people standing, while many other citizens crowded at the doors of the house, overflowing upon the floor and taxing the efforts of the presiding officer to keep that space clear for the members.

INTRODUCED BY ANDERSON.

When the senator arrived and was seated, President Anderson took the gavel and called the joint session to order. The resolution convening the joint session to hear Senator Smith was read. Promptly at 12 o'clock the joint committee appeared at the doors, escorting the senator. Cheers and applause greeted his entrance into the hall, escorted by several state house officials.

President Anderson introduced Senator Smith briefly as "one of Georgia's most distinguished sons."

Senator Smith was cheered again as he mounted the clerk's stand just below the speaker's rostrum, and a minute or more elapsed before he could begin his speech. He was heard with rapt attention.

Senator Smith's speech made a most favorable impression. He was frequently interrupted by applause and his course in the United States senate, as chronicled in his speech, was commended by a large majority of those who heard it.

The first speech the senator made, said Senator Smith, was in advocacy of a children's bureau bill, the purpose of which was to provide for an intelligent study of child life with a view to furnishing information helpful to the development of the highest type of citizens. This bureau was established and is already producing good results.

ARBITRATION TREATIES.

Touching upon the general arbitration treaties adopted by the last congress, Senator Smith declared that as first proposed they would have left to arbitration the question of Georgia's liability upon the repudiated bonds issued by the state during the reconstruction period.

The senator said that these treaties was opened by Senator Bacon and closed by Senator Smith. They were approved, but not until the most objectionable clauses were stricken out and other vital provisions were inserted.

JAPANESE DIFFICULTIES.

Referring to the difficulties which confront the people of the Pacific coast in their Chinese and Japanese problem, Senator Smith said: "From their troubles the whole country is realizing the difficulties with which we have had to contend, and they are helping us make converts to the doctrine that we must be left to handle our troubles for ourselves."

Senator Smith stated that he had voted for two battleships and announced his belief that it is essential to the peace of this country that war vessels of the United States shall be strong enough to protect our shores and our commerce from any foe.

He told how he had led the fight which resulted in reducing the appropriation for union pensions.

DEFEATED COMPENSATION BILL.

Senator Smith related how he had managed to prevent the passage of the workmen's compensation bill during the last session of congress, but predicted that it would be introduced again next winter.

Speaking of the passage of the income tax law he said: "I gave my most cordial support to the income tax bill. I believe that the great wealth of the country should bear its proportion of the burdens of government, and I am aware of no way by which this can be accomplished except through an income tax."

PARCEL POST BILL.

Senator Smith was a member of the senate committee on postoffices and post roads, which considered and amended the parcel post bill. He said he had striven successfully to prescribe a low rate on short hauls as against long hauls, being thoroughly satisfied that Georgia people are interested in short hauls.

Increased salaries for rural mail carriers were advocated by Senator Smith, who pointed out that the carriers were required to furnish their own teams, keep up their own conveyances and feed their teams.

He favored national aid for road building.

Senator Smith told of his efforts last year to get through a bill providing for an agricultural extension department which would enable the colleges of agriculture and experiment stations to demonstrate in every county of every state in the union. He said he had reintroduced this measure and he expected it to pass next winter.

VOCATIONAL EDUCATION.

Announcing his belief in vocational education, Senator Smith said he favored federal aid for institutions affording such training.

He related how he had been instrumental in the creation of a market division in the agricultural department, which he believed would result in greatly reducing the enormous waste which takes place between the producer and consumer of farm products.

The history of the overthrow of the old rule of seniority in the senate and the substitution of a more democratic

PINKERTONS NOW DECLARE LEO M. FRANK IS INNOCENT; GRAND JURY IS CALLED MONDAY TO INDICT JIM CONLEY

GRAND JURY CALLED TO TAKE UP MATTER OVER DORSEY'S HEAD

Foreman W. D. Beattie Calls Body to Meet Monday and Take Up Evidence Against Negro in Phagan Girl's Case derer

SOLICITOR REFUSED TO ISSUE THE CALL

Notwithstanding the Solicitor's Protest, Foreman Calls a Meeting Anyhow—Dorsey Issues a Statement

Over the vigorous protest of Solicitor General Hugh M. Dorsey, the foreman of the grand jury has called a meeting for Monday for the specific purpose of considering an indictment against James Conley, the negro sweeper, who claims that he assisted Superintendent Leo M. Frank in disposing of the body of Mary Phagan, after she had been murdered in the National pencil factory on April 26.

The solicitor general was approached Friday morning by W. D. Beattie, real estate dealer, who is the foreman of the present jury. Mr. Beattie asked Mr. Dorsey to call a meeting of the jury, and the solicitor flatly refused. Then Mr. Beattie informed the county's highest law-enforcing official that he, as foreman of the grand jury, would call the body together to consider the Conley affer.

After the conference Solicitor Dorsey authorized one of the few statements which he has made since he took up the Phagan case. He said that he told Mr. Beattie that the move to indict Conley was wrong, and should not be made.

MR. DORSEY SAYS.

"Its only purpose," the solicitor said, "will be to exploit the evidence and embarrass the state, and I hope the grand jury will not meet, and will decide to leave the matter alone.

"The indictment of Conley at this time will be a useless procedure that will not stop the trial of Frank. It will only have a mild, but undesirable effect on the state's case.

"Conley is in jail and is going to stay there for some time. He is where the authorities can put their hands on him, and he can be indicted much more properly after the Frank case has been disposed of than before, and by the delay there is no danger of a miscarriage of justice."

It has long been known that the defense of Frank will be in a measure the throwing of suspicion, and naturally it is of importance to the defense to have the man it will accuse under a grand jury indictment.

THE MURDERER.

If the grand jury acts on the Conley case on Monday it is said to be practically certain that the negro will be indicted as a principal and not as an accessory after the fact.

When The Journal published its exclusive story of last Wednesday, saying that action on the Conley matter would be taken before the Frank case went to trial, Foreman Beattie stated at that time he had no intention of calling the jury together to consider the Conley matter, and did not expect the jury to meet unless it was called by the solicitor general. He said, however, that if a majority of the jury asked him to call a meeting that he would take pleasure in so doing.

Friday Mr. Beattie positively refused to make any statement, but it is naturally supposed that a majority of the jury must have asked that a meeting be called.

LITTLE DOUBT OF VERDICT.

Therefore, it is apparent that the grand jurors from their general knowledge of the case, consider that action on the matter is necessary and there is little doubt that a bill charging Conley with the crime will be drawn.

If Conley is indicted the solicitor general will never allow him to go to trial for the crime before the case against Frank has been heard before a jury and its verdict rendered.

The attorneys for Frank, however, will probably be able to get into the record the fact that Conley is facing an indictment for the offense, which he lays in his statements at Frank's door.

In addition, it will give the witness Conley the appearance of testifying before a jury against Frank in order that he may save his own neck.

This is the first time the grand jury has taken up the consideration of a criminal case in this county over the protest of the solicitor general.

The law, however, gives the jury ample authority to take any action it wishes, regardless of the attitude of the solicitor general.

The grand jury can go further and instruct the solicitor to bring in all evidence, which he has in the case, and this course will probably be pursued.

BRISTOW'S DIG AT BRYAN VOTED DOWN BY SENATE

Democrats Defeat Resolution Asking State Secretary What Salary He Needs

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, July 18.—By strict party vote the senate Democrats today succeeded without debate in tabling Senator Bristow's resolution aimed at Secretary Bryan's proposed six weeks' lecture tour. The vote was 41 to 29.

The resolution would have called on President Wilson to advise the senate what salary would be sufficient to keep Mr. Bryan continuously at his post and was prompted by the secretary's recent public announcement that he was obliged to augment his pay of $12,000 a year by lectures to meet living expenses.

As the vote was announced Senator Bristow faced the Democratic senators and declared:

"You may shut off debate in the senate, but you cannot convince the American people that a secretary of state may neglect the duties of his office for three months of a year."

Vice President Marshall ruled Senator Bristow out of order.

"It would be just as reasonable for the attorney general to take three months off a year to practice law," shouted Senator Bristow, who refused to be shut out.

"Are you really apprehensive?" interrupted Senator Vardaman, a Democrat, "that the business of the state department will suffer because Mr. Bryan is occasionally away?"

"It has been said since this discussion arose," returned Bristow, "that the state department is better off with the secretary away than with him here. But I believe if the secretary would give the problems before him the powers of his great intellect, he could perform a great service to the country."

Honest, It's Warm In Atlanta Friday; 95 in the Shadows

Ninety-five degrees in the shade was what the thermometer registered Friday at 1 o'clock, and there's no relief in sight.

It will be just as hot Saturday as it was Friday, says the weather forecaster, who predicts even a longer continuance of the warm weather.

It ought to be some consolation, declared the forecaster, to know that Thursday was hotter by two degrees than Friday, and that during June the thermometer showed 96 degrees.

Three Die From Heat In Louisville Friday

(By Associated Press.)

LOUISVILLE, Ky., July 18.—Three deaths and a number of prostrations attributed to the heat were recorded in Louisville up to noon today. There were three deaths from heat when the government thermomter registered above 100 for five consecutive hours.

The temperature did not go below 80 during the night and at noon today it registered 101.

J. S. DAVIS NOMINATED SOUTHERN GA. MARSHAL

Nomination of David C. Barrow for Collector at Savannah Hanging on Snag

BY RALPH SMITH.

WASHINGTON, July 18.—The long-delayed, patiently awaited nomination of Joseph A. Davis, of Albany, as United States marshall for south Georgia, one of the senate's long list along with many other names. The nomination took the usual course and was referred to the judiciary committee, where its consideration will be expedited by Senator Bacon with all possible speed. Its confirmation is assured in due course of time, though there has been some talk among Republicans of resisting it because the Democrats declined last December to confirm President Taft's nominatiin of George S. White, of Macon, for reappointment to this office.

It is not known positively what delayed the nomination of Davis for such a length of time, following his recommendation by Senator Bacon. It was persistently rumored, however, that many protests were filed with the president against his selection, and it is probable that these delayed the nomination. The nomination of Howard Thompson, of Gainesville, for marshal in north Georgia will be favorably reported by the judiciary committee along with that of Davis. The Thompson nomination was made ten days ago by the president, but, as a member of the judiciary committee, Senator Bacon held it up pending the nomination of his man in south Georgia for the corresponding place.

It is the desire of Mr. Bacon that the respective choice of himself and his colleague, Senator Smith, shall receive the same consideration at the hands of the senate, though Senator Smith's man was first nominated by the president.

BARROW APPOINTMENT DELAYED.

The nomination of David J. Barrow for collector of the port at Savannah did not come in today, and it is quietly hinted that it may be delayed for some time, pending an effort to conciliate the local opposition to Mr. Barrow in Savannah. It has been suggested that Mr. Barrow may be given the assistant district attorneyship for south Georgia, in lieu of the collectorship. Senator Bacon's attitude with reference to this suggestion is unknown, as he made no promises to the Savannah delegation that waited on him the other day to protest Mr. Barrow's nomination as collector.

In the event it is decided to shift Mr. Barrow from the collectorship to the assistant district attorney's place his nomination may be delayed until next year. It is not believed the department of justice, in its present frame of mind, will not accept Alex Ackerman's resignation as district attorney until the first of the year. This conclusion is predicted upon the action of the attorney general some months ago in declining Mr. Ackerman's resignation, and asking that he continue in office until next January.

The declination of Mr. Ackerman's resignation at the time obviated an embarassing situation. Senator Bacon had determined to press A. Pratt Adams for this place, but the opposition became so rampant as to cause specula-

AMERICAN PROTECTION DEMANDED OF MEXICO

State Department Requests Troops in Durango Section to Guard U. S. Citizens

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, July 18.—In response to Consul Hamm's request for protection for Americans in the Durango section, the state department has demanded action from the Mexican federal authorities. The department went further than usual, in that it requested the federal government to dispatch troops from Torreon.

Consul Hamm previously has reported foreigners irrespective of nationality being held by revolutionists for ransom in Durango. The prisoners at one time included the archbishop of Durango.

CABINET TALKS MEXICO.

Consideration of the Mexican situation took much of the time of the president and the cabinet at a regular session today. Secretary Bryan had a long conference with the president before the other members arrived.

Although reports are coming in from various sources, the administration is looking forward to first hand information from Ambassador Wilson, on his way from Mexico City. It was again authoritatively stated today that the attitude of the administration still was unchanged.

CABINET BACKS MR. WILSON.

It was reiterated that the cabinet unanimously was in accord with the president in waiting a return to stable conditions before extending recognition. Several officials stated that the cabinet from the beginning had been of the opinion that the changing conditions of Mexican politics warranted the "hands off" policy for some time to come.

Secretary Bryan authorized the statement thath e would cancel any lecture engagement which would conflict with the conference next week he and the president will have with Ambassador Wilson.

Some of the members of the cabinet were not inclined to think any action would be taken after Ambassador Wilson's conference. They reiterated the belief that until elections were held in Mexico and an appearance of peace was in sight, formal recognition probably would be withheld.

Japanese Minister to Be Given Big Ovation

(By Associated Press.)

MEXICO CITY, July 18.—An unusual honor is to be paid the new Japanese minister by the Mexican government. It is sending a commission consisting of one representative of the foreign office and two military attaches to meet him at the port of Manzanillo. Plans are being drawn up for a huge popular demonstration on his arrival here.

General Felix Diaz, who has been appointed special ambassador to Japan to express the thanks of Mexico to the Japanese for their participation in Mexico's centennial in 1910, is referred today by the newspaper El Pais in an editorial article as the "political emigrant." The article says Diaz is being sent out of the country and expresses the opinion that there will be no elections in Mexico in the time fixed.

El Independiente also frankly expresses opinion that Diaz practically has been exiled, at least temporarily.

NOTED SLEUTHS WHO HAD ACCUSED FRANK NOW CHANGE THEORY

Harry Scott, Field Chief of the Pinkertons, Refuses to Discuss the Agency's Change of Theory

AGENTS HAVE WORKED ON CASE ALONG WITH POLICE

The Pinkertons Were Employed by the National Pencil Factory Immediately Following the Murder

That the Pinkerton detectives, who for so many weeks held to the theory that Leo M. Frank is guilty of the Mary Phagan murder, now lay the crime to the door of Jim Conley, is a recent development of interest to the students of the murder mystery.

While Harry Scott, the field chief of the Pinkerton operatives, who have been working on the case practically from the first, employed by the National pencil factory to find Mary Phagan's murderer, regardless of who the criminal might be, refuses to discuss the case, the Journal has learned from unquestioned authority that the theory of the Pinkertons has undergone a change.

The Pinkertons, while not admitted to many of the later conferences, which the solicitor has held with the city detectives, are said to be in possession of practically every point of importance in the state's case.

Scott, who was worked on the case with John Black, one of the best of the city detectives, was present at the time Jim Conley made his three most startling confessions of complicity in the murder, and he repeatedly cross examined the negro sweeper in many of relating his connection with the crime, and the strangeness of parts of his story, are said to be more responsible than anything else for the Pinkerton man's dropping the theory that Frank is guilty, and taking up the fight against Conley.

While the Pinkerton's attitude has been known for a number of days to the counsel for the defense and for the attorneys and detectives actively identified with the prosecution, it was only made public Friday.

A significant fact connected with the Pinkerton's attitude in the case is that Friday morning Scott made an effort to see Conley and give him another grilling, but was denied admission to the negro's cell.

Scott, after talking with Chief Beavers, said simply that he had been informed that the negro did not want to talk with anyone during the day, and that he (Scott) would probably see him another day.

Scott, working with Detective Black, made a number of attempts during the negro's admission of complicity to secure a confession from him, but failed.

While the Pinkertons do not now believe the factory superintendent guilty of the crime, the attitude of the solicitor general and the city detectives in the case has not been changed, and Solicitor Dorsey is making his preparations to go to trial in the case on July the 28th.

He, too, has talked many times with the negro Conley, and the negro's story has served only to strengthen his theory that Frank is guilty, rather than to convince him it shook the theory of the Pinkertons.

Luther Z. Rosser and Reuben R. Arnold, attorneys for Frank, are in conference almost daily, and they are expected to be ready to go to trial on Monday week when the case will be called.

NAILS MOVE AGAINST PHILIPPINE FREEDOM

President Refuses to Name Oscar T. Crosby as Governor General of Islands

BY RALPH SMITH.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 18.—An interesting story of circumstantial character concerning an effort to perpetuate the policies of the Taft administration in the Philippine Islands came to light today in connection with President Wilson's declination to appoint Oscar T. Crosby, of Warrenton, Va., as governor general of the islands. Mr. Crosby's appointment is understood to have been recommended to the president by Secretary of War Garrison, shortly before his departure on his southern swing.

"What are his antecedents and his connections?" Mr. Wilson is understood to have asked the very first thing. And then he learned that Mr. Crosby is interested in some street railroad properties in Delaware, and that his connections have been such as to disqualify him for administering a policy in the Philippines that is violently opposed by "big business interests" in the United States, notably street railroad promoters. Whereupon President Wilson erased Mr. Crosby's name from the slate, and the hunt continues for a governor general of the Philippines in sympathy with the president's and his party's purpose to give the Filipinos independence.

INFLUENCES AGAINST FREEDOM.

It was learned today that one of the big influences operating against Philippine freedom is the International firm of J. G. White & Co., street railroad, light and power promoters who are heavily interested in properties in Manila. While it is not known whether Mr. Crosby is interested with the White company in the Philippine properties, it is believed that President Wilson, thinking, possibly, that "birds of a feather flock together," experienced small difficulty in turning down the nominee of his secretary of war.

Interest in the selection of Mr. Crosby by Secretary Garrison, and the speed with which his name was effaced by the president, is not lessened by report that the Philippine society, of which former President Taft is president, was entirely agreeable to the appointment of the Virginian. The Philippine society is an organization whose sole purpose is to combat the plans of the Wilson administration with reference to the islands, and, if possible, perpetuate the Taft ideas in the islands.

CAPT MAN WATCHES SITUATION.

Martin Eagan, a well known newspaper man from Manila, who formerly was in America, is one of the moving spirits in the Philippine society and a warm friend to Mr. Taft. Mr. Eagan has been in the United States for some months, watching developments of the new administration with reference to the Philippines.

Both Mr. Eagan and former President Taft are friendly to Major General Leonard Wood, chief of staff. It is not known whether General Wood was consulted by Secretary Garrison in recommending Mr. Crosby, but it is understood that the secretary holds the general in high personal esteem and values very much his views about the army and the administration of the war department.

Secretary Garrison and Party in Chattanooga

(By Associated Press.)

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., July 18.—Secretary of War Garrison, Major General Leonard Wood, chief of staff; General James B. Aleshire, chief of the quartermaster's corps; Captain Bayard, S. J. Hindel and W. R. Pindo, reached here early this morning from Atlanta. After breakfasting in the city with Commodore A. L. Key, Paul Kruesi and John A. Patten, the party was escorted to Fort Oglethorpe in automobiles, where they made an informal inspection of the post. No formal entertainment was arranged for the secretary, owing to his brief stay in the city.

Secretary Garrison and his party spent the morning at Fort Oglethorpe, taking lunch there as guests of the committee of entertainment of the chamber of commerce, of which Commodore Key, brother-in-law of General Wood, is chairman. On return to the city, party will go to Walden's Ridge, eight miles from the city, where they will be entertained at supper as guests of the chamber of commerce, and will leave at 10 o'clock tonight for Memphis.

SAYS MANUFACTURERS PLEDGED CANNON AID

More Mulhall Letters Read, Edward Hines Again Figures in Probe

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, July 18.—How the National Association of Manufacturers promised to concentrate its energies if necessary for the re-election of former Speaker Cannon in the 1908 campaign was described in one of the first of the "Mulhall letters" brought before the senate lobby committee today.

The letter bearing on Cannon was written to Mulhall by Secretary Schwedtman, of the manufacturers, on August 17, 1908, and declared all energies would be concentrated in Cannon's district, "if there is the slightest occasion for it."

Edward Hines, Chicago lumberman, who figured in the Lorimer case, came into the hearing again today. Mulhall swore that in a letter to the manufacturers August 17 Hines spoke of a promise to send $1,000 to "go in the right channel to be used for legitimate purposes" in the Jenkins district. Schwedtman wrote Mulhall on August 28:

"I don't consider Teddy nor Taft, nor Sherman, nor Foraker, nor the rest of those great men equal to Van Cleave, Parry, Kirby and the others who have given freely of their energy and their money to the great cause, which is expected in the principles of the National Association of Manufacturers."

BELMONT'S TRACERY WINS $50,000 STAKES

Victory in One More Match Will Put Them in Challenge Round

WIMBLEDON, England, July 18.—Maurice E. McLoughlin and R. Norris Williams, of the United States, today beat R. B. *Powell and B. P. The double match will be played tomorrow.

Victory in one more match will enable the United States team to play England in the challenge round for the trophy.

PASSENGER FARES TO BE REVISED DOWNWARD SOON

CHICAGO, July 18.—A revision downward of interstate passenger fares has been begun by western and central passenger associations in compliance with an order by the interstate commerce commission that the new rates will be made effective May 1, 1914.

Passenger officials of railways entering Chicago said last night it is doubtful if the task of revising the tariffs can be completed within the time limits prescribed by the committee.

The long and short haul class of the interstate commerce law, which prohibits a higher charge for a through rate than the aggregate of the local fares became effective July 1, 1910, but the commission suspended the time for

Desperate Measures Bring Submarine Up After 200-Foot Drop

(By Associated Press.)

STOCKHOLM, July 18.—A terrifying accident to a Swedish submarine which sunk in 200 feet of water, then rose after a desperate expedient was resorted to, on July 2, has just become known, despite official efforts to keep the affair secret.

The submarine was practicing outside the harbor when by a mistake all of her tanks were filled simultaneously, and she sank to the bottom.

The pressure was enormous and the water began to dent the hull.

Desperate measures were necessary, and Lieutenant Bekham, in charge of the boat, ordered the lead keel detached. When this was removed the boat rose to the surface and the gasping crew drew in great draughts of air.

It is stated there that never before has a submarine risen to the surface after sinking to such a depth.

Blood Poison "606"

BY DR. J. T. GAULT.

The man who has contracted specific blood poison should not lose any time in seeking relief—a cure. The right treatment promises prompt action and sure relief, of course, is the most desired. We feel no longer called upon to proclaim Salvarsan "606" and Neo-Salvarsan "914" as the best remedies known to the profession for the cure of this disease. Hundreds and hundreds of patients in Atlanta and the surrounding countries have regained health and happiness through the use of this wonderful remedy. Dr. Gault, who is physician in charge of this office, has given over seven hundred treatments of this wonderful remedy with the very best of success. Dr. Gault was the first physician in Atlanta to begin to advertise and use "606" and he has proven during the past two years that "606" is all that he claims for it, and that there are absolutely no danger or bad after effects from the use of the remedy. If you need treatment don't hesitate to come in and see us. We guarantee our results to be satisfactory.

POLICE HOLD BOY OF 17 FOR CHAIN OF BURGLARIES

Believe Frank Houseman Has Raided Drug Stores, Saloons, Etc.

In the arrest of seventeen-year-old Frank Houseman, the city police believe they have captured the burglar whom they have been charging with a number of raids lately upon drug stores, saloons, etc., in different parts of the city.

Houseman is charged particularly with the burglarizing of Sweeney's saloon, 46 Wall street, Thursday night, when some $12 was stolen from the cash register, the burglar getting in by removing a glass from one of the rear doors.

Sergeant Hewell, formerly a detective, happened to be standing opposite Express alley, on Wall street, about 1 o'clock Friday morning, and sa wHouseman come out of the alley. The sergeant followed him to the Earl house.

About 5 o'clock, when the report came that a burglary had been committed in the saloon, the sergeant and Patrolman Besham went to the Earl house and arrested Houseman, finding what is believed to be the stolen money in his possession. Houseman admitted that he had taken part in the robbery, but charged that another did the actual work while he played the part of a lookout.

Heart Balm Asked from Aged Veteran Because of His War-Time Proposal

PATERSON, N. J., July 18.—Miss Emma Mahoney, sixty-seven years old, of Wooster, Ohio, asks a heart balm of $25,000 from John Wolff, a seventy-seven-year-old veteran of the Civil war and a retired merchant, in papers which have been served upon him here.

Miss Mahoney asserts that she has not seen Mr. Wolff since their separation in '63, when he went to the front, after, it is alleged, he had proposed to her. She says she has waited fifty years in the hope that her sweetheart of youthful days some day would wed her, and that she was recently encouraged by a second proposal of marriage by mail, but later received word that the marriage would never take place. She has forwarded scores of alleged love letters, many of them containing poems.

THEATRES

FORSYTH—Vaudeville.
GRAND—Motion Pictures.
BIJOU—Tabloid Musical Comedy.

Theatergoers are agreeing that the Forsyth bill this week is one of the cleverest of the season.

Valerie Bergere and her company present about the best dramatic playlet that has been ever offered here. Britt Wood, however, has captured the applause-winning hit of the bill. This young character comedian is a singing and dancing artist that is going to be classed with the headliners before very long. His real hit is with his harmonica. The Metropolitan Minstrels, five pretty little misses and two clever boys, offer a novelty that is a novelty.

A strong bill has been announced for next week. The star act will be the offering of John F. Conroy and his models. Deiro, the famous accordeonist, and Leater, the great ventriloquist, are on the bill.

"Les Miserables," the famous novel of Victor Hugo, written more than fifty years ago, has just been photo-dramatized and will be the attraction at the Grand all of the coming week. The advance sale of seats has started. All seats are reserved, and the scale will be 25 cents for matinees and 25 and 50 cents for night.

Patrons of amusements are finding this week's Bijou attraction "Hotel a la Carte," one of the most amusing and pleasing affairs of the season. "Good Morning, Judge," a musical tabloid in two acts, with Pearl Brothers and Burns is announced for next week's attraction at the Bijou.

CAUGHT UNDER ENGINE, ENGINEER CUTS THROAT

When Bystanders Refused to Kill Him, He Ended the Agony Himself

NASHVILLE, Tenn., July 18.—A special from Decatur, Ala., says that while a new locomotive was being tried out in the Louisville and Nashville yards there last night a switch engine collided with it, knocking it from the track.

The locomotive turned turtle, pinned down Huston Fleming, engineer, and Floyd Hamlin, of Columbia, Tenn., air inspector. Both lost their lives.

Fleming, under the engine, badly mashed and being scalded, begged bystanders to kill him. When they would not, he secured his own pocket knife and cut his throat.

TAX BILL GOES BACK TO HOUSE COMMITTEE

Ways and Means Minority Force Another Effort in Committee to Reach Agreement

The Lipscomb bill to create a state board of tax equalizers will go back to the house committee on ways and means, very probably. It was expected Friday morning that Chairman Akin, of that committee, would ask nanimous consent in the house that the bill be recommitted.

The bill was reported by a scant majority of the committee several days ago for passage by substitute. The close minority, favoring passage of the original bill, threatened to carry their fight against the substitute to the floor of the house if further attempt was not made to reach an agreement in the committee.

LEAHY HEADS BUREAU OF ATLANTA CHAMBER

Well-Known Railroad Man Is Industrial and Statistical Secretary

General Passenger Agent Wade Hampton Leahy, of the Atlanta, Birmingham and Atlantic railroad, has been appointed secretary of the industrial and statistical bureau of the Atlanta chamber of commerce, effective August 1.

The new department of the Atlanta chamber has only recently been authorized by the directors and Mr. Leahy will be its first secretary. Mr. Leahy will assume his new duties with an experience that will be invaluable to the department.

While associated officially with the Atlantic, Birmingham and Atlantic as general passenger agent, he has had direct supervision of all colonization plans along the line of the Atlanta, Birmingham and Atlantic, and the exploitation of the South Georgia territory has been effected by his efforts.

Under his administration hundreds of desirable immigrants have been brought to Georgia and scores of farms have been opened to cultivation through the untiring labors of Mr. Leahy. In his new capacity, Mr. Leahy will be in charge of all industrial plans of the Atlanta chamber and also will have supervision of the advertising of Atlanta and Georgia to the people of other parts of the United States.

There are few better known railroad men in the south than Mr. Leahy. He has been identified with the Atlanta, Birmingham and Atlantic railroad since its organization. His work as division passenger agent of the Atlantic Coast Line in charge of the Savannah and Jacksonville territory, attracted the notice of the Atlanta, Birmingham and Atlantic promoters and he was placed in charge of the passenger department of the new road in 1905.

When the Atlanta, Birmingham and Atlantic created the office of general passenger agent on July 15, 1907, Mr. Leahy was appointed to that position. Under his direction the passenger department of the road has opened to development of the rich Georgia lands from Atlanta to Brunswick and Thomasville. Much credit for the organization of South Georgia trade boards and chambers of commerce is due to the untiring work of Mr. Leahy and he is thoroughly familiar with this line of development. He is also the oldest official of the Atlanta, Birmingham and Atlantic railroad in point of service.

His hundreds of friends all over the south will be glad to learn of his appointment.

The traffic is large and the transportation lines include practically all the New wEngland and southeastern railroads and steamship routes.

His Aeroplane Lights On Cable, Like Birds

The aeroplane flies toward the cable in a parallel direction from below and by an upward movement attaches itself by means of a mechanical device. The system is now undergoing a careful examination.

NEW ATLANTA CHARTER GOES THROUGH HOUSE

Recorder's Power Curtailed at Instance of R. B. Blackburn

The bill to provide a new charter for the city of Atlanta, for ratification by the people if they want it, was passed without objection in the house of representatives Friday. The bill represents the views of those who preferred to patch the present charter rather than seek an entirely new one. The provisions concerning the initiative, referendum and recall were stricken from the bill by Representative Blackburn, of his own volition. Mr. Blackburn also reduced the maximum limit of the recorder's power.

PRISON SYSTEM BAD, SAY EPISCOPALIANS

Social Service Commission Urges Reform Measures Pending in Legislature

The social service commission appointed by the Episcopal diocese of Georgia at its annual convention, to consider social and economic questions in this state, has framed and submitted the following formal report on prison conditions:

"Resolved, That the prison system of the state of Georgia, and the methods of punishment now in use, and as commonly administered, are degrading and not worthy of an enlightened and progressive state.

"Resolved, That we hereby indorse the splendid efforts of the Prison Reform association of this state, and offer to them our hearty co-operation in securing needed reforms.

"Resolved, That we send copies of these resolutions to as many members of our legislature as possible and urge them to support those bills now pending which bear on the subject of prison reform in the state of Georgia, and which are advocated by the Prison Reform association."

Rev. G. S. Whitney, of Augusta, Ga., is chairman of the commission. It is authorized to represent the Episcopal church in Georgia in all efforts for social betterment, correction of evils and establishment of social justice in every community.

This commission represents, therefore, some 5,000 communicants, or about 7,500 baptized members of the Episcopal church residing in the southeastern half of the state of Georgia.

Copies of the resolutions are being mailed to the legislators, and numbers of them are already pledged to the support of the three general measures. All three—the bill to legalize the suspension of sentence and appoint probation officers, the bill establishing a home for wayward girls, and the bill enlarging the powers of the prison commission and tending to standardize the prison system—have been reported favorably for passage by the house committees.

SOUTH PRYOR REGRADING IS STRONGLY SUPPORTED

Property Owners Between Georgia and Ridge Avenues Get Project Under Way

A largely attended and enthusiastic meeting of the special committee to look into the proposed improvement on South Pryor street was held Thursday night at McCord Brothers' Grocery company.

A canvass of expressions from the various property owners between Georgia avenue and Ridge avenue is said to show that fully 90 per cent are in favor of widening and regrading the street before the smooth pavement is put down. A letter explaining the proposed improvement, together with a return postal card, was sent to every property owner, and practically every one has been heard from.

The property owners propose to give the land necessary to widen the street, waiving all claims for damages, and will attempt to get the county and city to do the work. With the work on Georgia avenue soon to be completed, the owners on South Pryor, between Ridge avenue and Georgia avenue, realize that unless improvement comes soon to their section, it will be avoided by all travelers driving through the south side.

The city engineer's department has already made a survey of the lower end of Pryor street and it is hoped that at the committee meeting next Thursday night a profile will be submitted and a permanent grade agreed upon.

Those present at the meeting Thursday night were C. E. Register, J. L. McCord, E. W. Camp, W. T. Nelson, T. F. Brinkley, H. E. DeLaney, J. T. Topham, J. M. Davis, F. H. Butler, G. D. Kitchens, R. B. Deavors, W. W. Dudley, L. B. Sullivan, W. A. Gresham, H. Cronheim, J. L. Merrill, J. J. L. Poole, Lee Dryfus, Councilman C. D. Knight and Press Huddleston.

ATTORNEY AND WITNESS CAME NEAR FIGHTING

Question of Attorney James Brought Witness to His Feet in Crawford Case

Attorney J. S. James, representing the prosecution of Mrs. Mary Belle Crawford, who is charged with murdering her husband, the late Joshua B. Crawford, in March, 1909, declares that detectives are still making every effort to locate Fred Lumb, the New York barber, who is charged with being an accessory in the alleged crime.

Mr. James intimates that there are others who will be charged with being accessories, but as yet no action has been taken.

The hearing of the civil litigation over the $250,000 estate of the late J. B. Crawford continued before Auditor James N. Anderson on Friday.

Dr. R. R. Kime was called on the stand to answer a number of hypothetical questions. He testified that if certain things alleged by the "Crawford Heirs," are true, Crawford was insane in 1909 at the time he married.

Mrs. Mary Belle Savage, who is now the principal figure in the sensational litigation.

The other witness was George W. Bolden, who resided at the hotel in St. Augustine, which was being operated by Mrs. Crawford just before her marriage. He met and knew Crawford, who was also stopping there, and considered him a sane person, capable of looking after his affairs.

During Bolden's testimony there ensued another wordy war which almost resulted in a personal conflict between the witness and Attorney James. Bolden testified that he had known Mrs. Crawford well and could swear that she was a lady in all respects.

"How did you know she was a lady?" questioned Attorney James.

Bolden refused to answer, and when James pressed him and declared that he must answer, the witness told the attorney that if he didn't withdraw the question he would "come over there and lick him."

So saying Bolden jumped from the stand and started toward the lawyer with clenched fists. Auditor Anderson put himself between the two men and Attorney Reuben Arnold persuaded Bolden to leave the room, thus averting the clash.

It has been learned that Attorney Frank A. Hooper, who was designated by Judge W. D. Ellis to act as solicitor general in the Crawford case, cannot serve.

Attorney Burton Smith, of counsel for Mrs. Crawford, expects to ask the judge to designate another solicitor pro tem at once. Mrs. Crawford's attorneys are said to be very anxious that the grand jury take up the case at once, as they are confident that it can be quickly settled.

COUNCIL COMMITTEES MUST REPORT ON PAPERS

If Ordinance Is Passed Which Councilman Ashley Will Introduce

A number of interesting resolutions will be introduced in council Monday.

One, which will be presented by Councilman C. L. Ashley, is an ordinance compelling all committees to report on papers turned over to them at the session following that at which they were referred, and that the committees, in case they find it impossible to reach a conclusion within that time, shall be required to make a report, stating their difficulty and asking for an extension of time in which to consider the matter.

"Such an ordinance is much needed," said Mr. Ashley in commenting on it. "For years it has been customary to refer resolutions and ordinances to committees without requiring reports within a certain time. In consequence, many of them never are acted on, and in many cases there is much delay. Such an ordinance would expedite business, and would prevent the killing out of resolutions by putting them, as we say, into the 'incubator' for an indefinite length of time."

Another resolution, which will be introduced by C. W. Smith, will request, a petition to the legislature to amend the city charter so as to give council the right to pass ordinances providing for the supervision and inspection of boilers and elevators, the intention being to enlarge the scope of the board of smoke and gas inspection.

That such an ordinance is necessary in order to protect life and property is the opinion of those who are conversant with the situation in Atlanta. Many elevators and boilers are inspected regularly by the insurance companies, but many more are not, and the lack of inspection is often responsible for loss of human life.

As matters now stand the city has no right to compel owners to submit to inspection or to correct dangerous conditions, and the ordinance is intended to remedy this lack of authority.

SPEEDING NEGRO HALTED BY LINE OF BLUECOATS

Negro Gets Extra Heavy Fine for Refusing to Heed Halt Order

Ben Griggs, a negro, captured in a trap set by the police across Decatur street in front of headquarters Thursday afternoon, was fined $25.75 by Recorder Broyles because he had aggravated his offense of speeding by disregarding a policeman's command to halt.

Patrolman Whitley was standing at the corner of Decatur and Jackson streets Thursday afternoon when the negro, mounted on a motorcycle, whirled around the corner of Jackson into Decatur at a speed estimated at thirty miles an hour. Several pedestrians narrowly escaped being hit. Patrolman Whitley shouted for the negro to halt, but the negro turned on more speed. The patrolman opened a signal box close at hand and notified headquarters that the negro was coming up Decatur street. Several officers formed a line across the street, and when the negro came along at a rapid rate he found himself confronted by that line, and stopped.

SEES $100,000 INCREASE IN REVENUE OF CITY

Chairman Smith, of Council Tax Committee, Having Railroad Properties Surveyed

Through increased taxation of the railroad trackage in the city, through the collection of back taxes, and from other sources which heretofore have not yielded their full quota of revenue, the city tax committee expects to add $100,000 and more to the city's income next year.

In going over the records of the tax office, the committee has discovered that no map of railroad trackage in the city has been made in twenty years, and that the city is deriving no more revenue from this source than the little town of College Park receives from the trackage within its limits.

An appropriation of $500 was recently made by council to pay for the platting and measuring of the trackage in the city, and the construction department is now at work finding out just how much land in the city is given up to trackage. As soon as the work is completed the tax committee will turn the results over to the state comptroller, with the request that he assess the railroads at so much per mile. This, declares Chairman C. W. Smith, of the tax committee, will give the city approximately $35,000 more than it is now receiving from the railroads.

Also, in going over the records, the committee discovered that about $41,000 is due the city from back fi fas on property. A complete list of the property on which back taxes have not been paid has been made out, and the tax collectors are now at work. In most instances the fi fas are of recent date, and the collectors are having but little trouble collecting.

In cases where the collection of the taxes is barred by the long number of years in which they have been uncollected the property will be dropped from the books of the city, thus clearing the records, and in more recent cases, where the owners cannot be located, the property will be sold.

WOMEN WILL KEEP TAB ON CHICAGO ALDERMEN

(By Associated Press.)

CHICAGO, July 18.—Chicago club women plan to pack the council chambers Monday night armed with pad and pencil, to keep tabs on the activities of the aldermen regarding certain municipal problems to be considered. They expect to make an impressive demonstration if the council fails to take action on the garbage question, the city's contract with a private corporation for the disposal of refuse expiring within five weeks.

Arrangements for the attendance at the council meeting were completed yesterday at the monthly meeting of the members of the Woman's City club. Several hundred women were present and enthusiastically indorsed the proposition.

BOLL WEEVIL RAVAGES FINE CROPS IN ALABAMA

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

MONTGOMERY, Ala., July 18.—Boll weevils are destroying cotton plants in Washington county and many farms will not yield one bale to each ten acres, according to W. S. Pugh, tax collector of Washington county, who came to Montgomery yesterday to make a final settlement with the state auditor.

Mr. Pugh said farmers are fighting the pest, but that they have already done a serious damage. In some sections of the county the cotton crop has been plowed up and corn planted on the laid.

T. Cammack.

MERRITT RESIGNATION HAS NOT BEEN ASKED

Head of Sanatorium Says He Doesn't Know Whether He'll Quit or Not

That he has not resigned and that he has not been asked to resign, and, further, that he does not know whether he will resign or not, are the statements of Dr. W. S. Merritt, physician in charge of the Battle Hill sanatorium, upon reports that he was about to quit under pressure from the sanatorium committee of the city government.

Dr. J. P. Kennedy, city health officer, also states that Dr. Merritt's resignation has not been requested, and that, so far as he knows, there is no intention to request it. Dr. Merritt has not been satisfied with the results he was getting at the sanatorium, says Dr. Kennedy. Dr. Merritt has felt that he was handicapped by a small force of assistants and by lack of other necessary provisions. But Dr. Kennedy has not heard that he would resign. A week or so ago a couple of complaints against the sanatorium by former patients were investigated by the committee, says Dr. Kennedy; but the surmise that they led to a request for Dr. Merritt's resignation is incorrect. The complaint attributed to Jesse Shelton in published reports, that Dr. Merritt had spoken roughly to him, has had no result even similar to that one surmised.

Mayor Woodward, however, is reported to have implied that Dr. Merritt's resignation had been asked for, and that he would quit as head of the sanatorium about August 31.

Dr. Merritt has been in charge of the sanatorium during three administrations. He came to Atlanta from the charge of a tuberculosis sanatorium in Louisville, Ky.

Senator Hoke Smith Renders an Account of His Stewardship

form of organization in its place was related.

THE TARIFF BILL.

Referring to the pending tariff bill, which he said he expected to pass within six weeks, Senator Smith said it must be conceded by everyone that the senate Democrats have made the bill more democratic than it was when it reached the senate. He declared that the Democrats have votes enough to pass the bill. Making a local application of the tariff, he said: "There may have been an occasional industry in Georgia which a protective tariff has benefited, but the people as a rule have been buyers of those things which a protective tariff has made artificially expensive, while their great product, cotton, has been sold at a price fixed by the free markets of the world."

CURRENCY LEGISLATION.

As to pending currency legislation Senator Smith said: "The currency bill which has been introduced both in the senate and in the house will free this country from dependence upon Wall street. It will facilitate an increase of our ready to meet the especial demands for same. It will make a currency panic impossible."

In conclusion Senator Smith paid a high tribute to President Wilson, whom he declared already ranks with the great presidents of the early days of the republic.

SPEECH IN FULL.

Following is Senator Smith's address in full:

Senators and Members of the House of Representatives:

I thank you for the privilege of addressing you. It is a great pleasure to be here. The one drawback to service in the United States senate has been it has kept me away from home.

I believe that public office should be held alone for public service. The chief compensation to the man who fills office should be the knowledge that he has really served his constituents. I may add also the gratification of having your constituents think so.

It cannot be doubted that public service is promoted by having those represented know just what their representatives do. As this is the first time I have addressed my constituents since I entered the senate, I wish to speak of what has been done in that body, and to give some account of my stewardship.

CHILDREN'S BUREAU.

Very soon after I entered the senate we had under consideration a bill to create a children's bureau. The purpose of this measure was through this bureau to study the problems of child life with the view of furnishing information helpful to the development of the highest type of citizens.

The constitutionality of the measure was attacked by several senators, among others by Senator Bailey, of Texas. I was requested by friends of the measure to speak in support of the constitutionality of the bill.

I believe the national government has the right to appropriate money for the general welfare, leaving it to use the powers specifically given by the constitution. Where no powers are specifically given by the constitution, the national government can still spend money as any private citizen might spend his own money, provided always the expenditure is for the general welfare.

I believe there are causes which furnish opportunity for service to the general public of great importance. I would rather see the national government raise the money by income taxes and spend it for such purposes than to leave the people indebted to men for great charities.

I appreciate the opportunity to first speak in the senate for such a cause as the creation of the children's bureau. The bureau has been established, and I hope it will grow in value.

GENERAL ARBITRATION TREATIES.

During 1911 much was heard throughout the United States about general arbitration treaties which had been negotiated with foreign countries that were to bring to an end the possibility of war. Many good men all over the country urged the adoption of these treaties without realizing the consequences which would follow.

After carefully studying these treaties I reached the conclusion that under them foreign claims against the demand arbitration of questions involving our purely governmental policies. They would have demanded arbitration of our right to hold the Panama canal zone, of questions affecting the admission of aliens into the United States, and the admission of aliens into the educational institutions in the several states, of questions relating to the Monroe doctrine, and of questions involving the alleged indebtedness or moneyed obligations of the southern states.

The president immediately came home to ourselves, they could have demanded an arbitration of the liability of Georgia for the bonds issued during reconstruction times, and repudiated by the state. Indeed, my colleague and I were advised that pending the consideration of the treaty letters of reference to the repudiated bonds had already been presented at the state department.

The proposed treaties were supported in debate by leading Republicans, among others, Senators Root, Lodge and Burton. The senior senator from Georgia opened the debate in favor of amendments requiring a modification of the treaties so as to exclude the objectionable features to which I have referred, and I had the privilege of closing the debate against these treaties.

The treaties were not approved, but not until the more objectionable paragraphs were stricken, and a proviso added that the action of the senate with the understanding made a part of the ratification that the treaties would not authorize the submission to arbitration of any claim concerning a question which involves the indebtedness of moneyed obligations of any state of the United States or of any question affecting the admission of aliens into the United States or of the admission of aliens to the educational institutions of the several states or of the Monroe doctrine, or of questions of purely governmental policy.

The importance of excluding as a question of arbitration the right of aliens to enter our country, to enter the schools of the states and to buy land, has received attention from the country in connection with the determined purpose of the white people of the Pacific coast to protect themselves against Asiatic immigration. I sympathize with them in their determination to preserve the beautiful slopes west of the Rocky Mountains for the white people who are now there, and for those who may grow up to inhabit the soil of their fathers.

Chinese and Japanese already in sufficient numbers have landed upon the coast to teach them the difficulties which may come from race problems. We may find from their situation that it can be a source of comfort. From their troubles the whole country is realizing the difficulties with which we have to contend, and they are helping us make converts to the doctrine that we must be left to handle our troubles for ourselves.

In this connection I wish to add that I voted for two battle ships. I believe it essential to the peace of this country that war vessels of the United States shall be strong enough to protect our shores and our foreign commerce from any foe. I believe it essential that our men-of-war should be able to control the ocean west of us. We need fear no trouble on the east.

CIVIL WAR PENSION BILLS.

About the time the general arbitration treaties were disposed of, the house of representatives passed what was known as the Sherwood pension bill. It provided for an increase of between eighty and ninety million annually to the union pensioners of the Civil war. It came to the senate and was referred to the pension committee. While it was pending before the pension committee a number of special pension bills came up in the senate for action. These were bills providing for increases in various amounts of from fifteen to fifty dollars to men already receiving pensions.

I believed that it was essential to build a sentiment against the Sherwood bill before it was reported out of the committee on pensions, and I took advantage of the opportunity of these special pension bills to discuss the pension question, and to build as far as possible a sentiment against the enormous increase proposed by the Sherwood bill.

So unaccustomed was the senate to hear a southern man protest against Union pensions that only three special pensioners gave me support when I called for an aye and nay vote. They were my colleague and Senator Bryan, of Florida. Already the sentiment has been paid to Union pensions of the Civil war more than four billions of dollars. When I stated this fact upon the floor of the senate the senator from New Hampshire interrupted me and protested that it was mistaken. I had the report of the committee on pensions at my right hand, and turned to the figures showing that the actual payments made up to that time were four billions, one hundred millions of dollars. The figures were startling.

The entire agricultural lands in the eleven southern states with all the improvements thereon, including farm implements and live stock amounted, according to the census of 1870, to only one billion and forty millions of dollars.

Under our system of taxation prior to the adoption of the income tax it is conceded that the payments of pension national taxes were prorated between the states according to population. During the past fifty years Civil war pensioners in the eleven states have averaged more than one-fourth of the population of the United States. They have, therefore, contributed more than one-fourth of the money paid as pensions to the union soldiers of the Civil war. The startling truth is demonstrated that the eleven southern states have paid to union pensioners of the Civil war the entire value, in 1870, of their agricultural lands, all improvements thereon together with their agricultural implements and live stock.

The difficulty has not been so much that excessive pensions have been paid to the Union soldiers who were really engaged in the war, who fought in the trenches and rendered service, but a large part of it has been contributed to men who never rendered any service, and never were near enough to a battle line to rub the blacking off their boots. We attacked not the pensions to the real soldiers, but the pensions to sham soldiers, and the failure of past Republican legislation to distribute the money where it should have gone.

The fight upon special pensions was kept up for about three weeks. Before it ended there were many recruits who joined Senator Bacon, Bryan and myself in the fight, and we built a sentiment against extravagant pensions, which while it did not defeat the Sherwood bill, has caused it to be reduced from eighty-five millions annually to about twenty millions annually.

The pay roll of pensioners of the Civil war will amount this year to $170,000,000. It would seem that this should satisfy the demand of the most extreme, but there will be bills coming for large general increases of pensions. The time has passed when the voice of any representative from any section of this Union should be silent upon a question that concerns the general interests, and I believe it to be the duty of your senators to resist in every proper way an increase in the now already enormous payments for pensions of the Civil war.

WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION ACT.

The bill known as the workmen's compensation act, provided for an adjustment of the injuries to railroad employes engaged in interstate commerce. While I was opposed to the principle of a compensation act, I opposed this bill because the payments to be made were so small that I considered it really a bill to save the railroad corporations from their just liability to injured employes. I opposed it also because it deprived the state court of any jurisdiction over the subject, and created in its stead the office of a federal court officer, called an adjuster, who really occupied the position of a special master.

When the bill was in the senate I sought to amend it that it might be relieved of its objectionable features. Practically every Democrat supported the amendments offered but they were defeated by the Republican vote. In the house ninety-eight amendments were added to the bill. It reached the senate two days before adjournment, and was called up for discussion. One of these amendments passed by the house allowed the defendant corporation to remove any case appealed to the United States district court from the decision of an adjuster to the residence of the defendant. This would have allowed such railroads companies as the Southern, the Louisville and Nashville, the Seaboard and the Atlantic Coast Line doing business in Georgia, to take cases out of Georgia, and try them in the state where the principal offices of these corporations.

I stated very frankly upon the floor of the senate that it would be impossible for me to vote for the bill if the views I desired to express with reference to the ninety-eight amendments should be disregarded, and as the senate would adjourn in two days the debate could not be concluded within the remaining time. The bill was therefore upon my motion, the senate by those who had supported it.

The measure will come up again in different form at the next winter. I think it exceedingly probable that a bill free from objection can be perfected and passed.

EXCISE TAX.

When the excise tax bill came over from the house I was requested by the Democrats of the finance committee of the senate to take charge of the measure and conduct the debate from the Democratic standpoint. As the constitutional amendment authorizing an income tax has been approved by the necessary number of states, and as our new revenue bill provides for an income tax, I will not take your time to discuss the excise tax for it was simply intended as a substitute for an income tax pending our lack of constitutional authority to pass an income tax.

I gave my most cordial support to the income tax. I believe that the great wealth of the country should bear its full proportion of the burdens of government, and I am aware of no way by which this can be accomplished except through an income tax.

PARCEL POST.

Perhaps no more interesting subject was before the last congress than the question of a parcel post. The international parcel post is conducted as a result of treaties upon a flat 12 cents a pound rate. The farmers of the country had largely been educated to the view that our domestic parcel post should conform to the international parcel post. The literature which these had read to a great extent had been printed and circulated by the large postoffice order department stores located in New York, Philadelphia and Chicago. They were simply seeking to prepare an easy way to distribute their own goods without reference to the interest of the public at large.

I was a member of the senate committee on postoffices and post roads which had the parcel post before it. The house passed a bill giving a rate of 15 cents for eleven pounds on rural routes, providing a uniform rate of five cents a pound for shipments other than on rural routes. The senate postoffice committee got a large amount of study to this question and gathered much statistical information. I became thoroughly satisfied that the hauls in which our enterprising people have established short hauls from points to points inside our own state, and not the longer hauls from Chicago, New York or Philadelphia, and 12 cents a pound for short hauls would have prevented the use by our people of hauls in the state. The rate would have been prohibitive.

To illustrate: It would have made a charge of $1.32 for the transportation of a parcel post package from Marietta to Atlanta, from Newnan to La Grange, or from Forsyth to Macon. We sought to find what the cost would be to the government for carrying packages short distances by parcel post, and we fixed the rate far below 12 cents a pound for the short hauls, and we also provided a plan by which the rate could be still further lowered if it was found upon experience that the cost of carrying the packages would justify a still further reduction.

Perhaps no one upon the postoffice committee took a deeper interest in this rate problem than I did. I believe the parcel post is destined to be of immense service to all the people, and that no state will derive greater benefit from it than Georgia. It will facilitate exchange of products between the merchants and their customers, and will facilitate the sale of his smaller products by the farmer. I feel sure that it will grow in value as it grows older, and I am grateful to have had an opportunity to help properly start the parcel post.

RURAL CARRIERS.

In this connection I wish to say that I believe the government should make provisions for the expenses of the rural carriers which will grow with the parcel post. At the last session of congress I had the opportunity of helping increase their maximum pay from $900 to $1,000. I shall urge this winter an increase of the maximum pay to $1,400. It should be remembered that the rural route agents are required to furnish their own teams, keep up their own conveyances, and feed their teams. We will require improved modes of transportation over rural routes, and some plan must be adopted to meet these changing conditions.

GOOD ROADS

An important question which has been considered by the senate has been that of national aid to good road building. This question in part before the postoffice and post roads committee of the senate. I favor national aid to road building.

In the reorganization last March where I had the opportunity to select somewhat for myself the committees upon which I would serve, I decided to remain upon the postoffice and post roads committee of the senate and upon the committee on agriculture, rather than to go instead upon committee perhaps more showy, because I believe that these two committees furnish especial opportunity to care in a practical way for those questions that would affect directly the majority of the people of the state, and I retained my positions upon them as a means of watching your interests.

AGRICULTURAL EXTENSION DEPARTMENT.

The importance of agriculture to our entire country is more thoroughly appreciated at present than at any past time. With us in Georgia it furnishes the chief source of prosperity. When the farmer prospers every occupation and every line of industry in Georgia prospers. When the farmer fails to make a profit from his crop money is scarce in the state and the complaint of hard times is heard on all sides.

Many truths have been discovered in the last few years by investigations to those things which pertain to farming. The state colleges of agriculture and experiment stations have conducted investigations and made tests of great importance, and their investigations and tests have been especially with reference to the conditions in their respective states. These institutions are still engaged upon this work and will continue to demonstrate new truths which would be most helpful if understood and used in the daily work on the farm.

Very soon after entering the senate I conferred with the executive committee of the state agricultural colleges and experiment stations with a view to legislation which would enable the colleges of agriculture and experiment stations to demonstrate in each county of every state in the Union, in the presence of the farmers upon their own farms, all the truths that heretofore or hereafter may be worked out in the college and experiment stations. We prepared a bill for the extension of agricultural extension departments in each of the state colleges of agriculture throughout the country. I introduced the bill into the senate, and Congressman Lever, of South Carolina, introduced the bill into the house. I found myself embarrassed, in pressing the bill in the senate, by a bill previously introduced upon the subject of vocational education by Senator Page, of Vermont.

The bill passed the house and came over to the senate. It passed the senate, but, by almost a strict party vote, additional provisions were added to it by the Republicans, which loaded the measure down to such an extent that it did not pass in its amended form in the house, and we were unable to obtain in conference any agreement which could bring about any legislation upon this line.

I reintroduced the measure at the first of the present session, and have the utmost confidence that it will pass next winter. Under its provisions, in a short time we will have a trained expert in every county in the state showing, by demonstration, all that is worked out at the state college of agriculture and experiment station.

VOCATIONAL EDUCATION.

One of the most important subjects toward which the attention of our people can be turned is the proper training of children for lines of work they will follow in maturing years. I believe thoroughly in vocational education. I believe it to be entirely proper to aid and encourage instruction of this character by appropriation from the national treasury.

I regard vocational education as entirely distinct from the agricultural extension work to which I have just referred, and with a purpose of separating the two I have asked for the appointment of a commission to study and report to congress this winter upon the problem of national aid to vocational education.

I would not approve national interference with our state schools, but I do believe that a plan can be matured where national aid distributed through state organizations would help stimulate the training of children for the various pursuits of life, and that such appropriations will bring a great contribution to the prosperity of the entire country, and to the happiness of all the people.

MARKETING CROPS.

Early last year, after a conference with the president and other officers of the Farmers' union, I introduced a bill to create a department in the department of agriculture. The work of this division was to investigate systems of marketing farm products, co-operate and advise with the state and various societies of the United States, to collect data with reference to them and to distribute the data thus collected to farmers and farm organizations.

Investigation has disclosed the fact that an alarming waste takes place between the producer and consumer of farm products. Where the farmer receives a dollar the average consumer pays two dollars for the farm product. To learn how the waste can be cut to divide the saving between the farmer and the consumer is the great problem of the market bureau of the agricultural department.

I succeeded in having attached to the agricultural appropriation bill a provision under which this division has already been started in the agricultural department, and I believe it will grow in value as it grows older, to the farmers and to the people generally.

REORGANIZATION OF THE SENATE.

The complaint for years has justly been made that the senate of the United States failed to respond to the wishes of the people, that its action was too much dominated by the influences of special interests, and that rights and liberties of the great body of the people had scant hearing in the upper house. One of the evils connected with the plan of organizing the senate which has contributed to justify this complaint was the rule of seniority of service which gave to senators all the prominent positions, both the chairmanships and the places lower down on the committees of chief importance, due solely to the length of time senators had served in the senate.

I believed that this practice was fundamentally wrong, that it put the power with either party in the senate in the hands of a few. With several other senators early last December I determined to seek the overthrow of the old rule of seniority and the establishment of a form of organization more democratic in its character and more serviceable in its results. After full conference we determined to accord the chairmanships of the various committees to senators based upon length of time of service, but not to concede second places upon any committees to senators simply on account of their length of service.

The plan which we adopted prevailed in the Democratic caucus, and those of us who advocated this plan named the new officers of the caucus and elected the new committees on committees, which in turn assigned the various senators to committee positions. The old senators were given the most prominent chairmanships, but new senators were placed upon all the leading committees with a disregard to the rule of seniority never before known in the senate. I hardly think anyone will doubt that this change has worked to the advantage of the party and the country.

TARIFF BILL.

The finance committee organized under this new practice has reported to the senate the house tariff bill with a number of amendments. For the first time in fifty years legislation intended to take the burdens off the masses of the people has found no resistence in the Democratic senate. It must be conceded by all that the senate Democrats have made the tariff bill more Democratic than it was when it reached the senate. I will say for my colleague Democrats on the finance committee of the senate, after working with them an average of ten hours a day for more than two months, I have never known nine men to show more entire freedom from improper influence or more devoted purpose to everything they did to serve the great body of their fellow citizens.

Nearly all the time for half a century the Republican party has maintained a protective tariff so high that foreign competition in many lines of industries was prevented. Then under a system which it fostered combinations destroyed domestic competition. The consumers of the country were forced to pay largely more for what they used than would have been charged them under fair competition among sellers. The Republican party has gone further, it has made favorites out of particular classes. It has received from them the funds with which to carry on their campaigns and in return has paid them back ten fold by the money which it has aided them to unjustly take from the pockets of the people.

PLAN OF TARIFF REDUCTION.

The Democratic party has undertaken to reform the tariff downward for the purpose of reducing it to the lowest possible system of legalized robbery. The plan of the Democratic tariff bill involves several different propositions.

First, the raising of revenues.

Second, the production of legitimate competition, to the end that fair prices shall be charged consumers.

Third, no taxes, or the lowest possible taxes, upon the necessaries of life and those things used by the great body of the people.

Fourth, high taxes upon luxuries.

Each of these propositions has entered into the construction of the new tariff bill. For the work of the Democrats of the house, shown by the tariff bill which they sent us, I accord the highest praise, but I declare without fear of dispute, the Democrats of the senate have improved the bill, and have made it more completely conform to the four purposes which I have mentioned.

UNDERWOOD ON THE HOUSE BILL.

Addressing the house of representatives in support of the Democratic measure, Congressman Underwood when presenting the Democratic measure to the house said to the Republicans:

"The common soap you place a tax of 20 per cent. We have lowered the tax to 5 per cent. You taxed the furniture of the poor man 35 per cent. We have lowered it to 15 per cent. You taxed bread and biscuits 20 per cent. We placed them on the free list. On cotton clothing you taxed the people of this country 50 per cent. We have reduced it to 20 per cent. On the flannels that protect them in the winter from the storms you taxed the people of the United States over 95 per cent, and we have reduced the tax to 25 and 35 per cent. You taxed the shoes of the people of the United States, after giving the shoemaker free raw material, you taxed them 10 per cent. We give free shoes to the people of America."

SENATE ACTION ON THE TARIFF.

With the fullest praise for what the Democrats of the house did, I wish to say that the Democrats of the senate sustained the reductions made by the house, and after investigations and hearings reduced them in great importance.

The house Democrats put flour upon the free list, but taxed wheat. The senate Democrats put both upon the free list.

The house Democrats put meat and cattle upon the free list, but taxed cattle. The senate Democrats put meat and cattle both upon the free list.

The house Democrats left a tax of 25 per cent upon cheap woolen blankets. The Democrats of the senate put them upon the free list. The house taxed wool of the angora goat and alpaca. The senate Democrats put them on the free list.

The house Democrats taxed flax and hemp; the senate Democrats put them upon the free list.

The house Democrats taxed pig iron, and steel billets, and ferro manganese. The senate Democrats put them on the free list.

The house Democrats taxed text books. The senate Democrats placed them on the free list.

Both the house and senate Democrats placed jute bagging and cotton ties on the free list. Both placed wire fencing on the free list. Both placed agricultural implements on the free list, and what has been known as the farmers' free list, so much discussed two years ago, when passed by the house and rejected by the senate, is now contained in the tariff bill which passed the house and which has been approved by the Democratic caucus of the senate without a dissenting vote. And what I wish to say to you today is we have the votes in the senate to pass the bill.

There has been a mistaken idea in some parts of Georgia that a high protective tariff was helping a portion of our industries. This view has been absorbed by those who entertained it without carefully studying in detail the effect which the protective tariff has had upon us. Take our cotton industries. The products made in Georgia are placed as cheap as they are anywhere in the world. Had our cotton manufacturers been allowed to buy their machinery in the free markets of the world, they would have bought it at one-third less than it cost them.

There may be an occasional industry in Georgia which a protective tariff has benefited, but our people as a rule have been buyers of those things which a protective tariff has made artificially expensive, while their great product, cotton, has been sold with a price fixed by the free markets of the world.

Our farmers have been overcharged for the things which they are compelled to buy because of excessive prices maintained by the exclusion of foreign competition. It has been conceded that, while the government collected three hundred millions of dollars each year from the duties on industries in the United States, which the high tariff was intended to help, collected over a billion of dollars more from the people than they would have charged but for the exclusion of foreign competition. These burdens fell upon all the people of the land, but were especially heavy upon the farming classes, who in no respect receive any benefit.

I believe that the adoption of our new tariff bill will mark an era of prosperity throughout the country. The industries heretofore protected will not lose in the long run by competition, but, spurred through it to greater effort, they will seek their profits by broader trade, developing and making the markets the dollars of their neighbors, they will reach into the markets of the world for the sale of their commodities.

The great body of consumers will feel a substantial lightening of their burdens. A wider opportunity for individual effort will be given. The average man will have a better chance. I do not mean that these changes will come instantly, but they will come gradually, and they will be more and more perceptible each year for several years.

It is impossible to say just when we will vote upon the tariff bill in the senate. I believe we will certainly vote before the end of six weeks, possibly in much less time. I do not think any considerable delay will take place in conference. I believe the differences between the two bodies will easily be adjusted by the Democrats in the two bodies and the measure be soon passed with the approval of the Democrats of both houses.

CURRENCY LEGISLATION.

Few men who have studied our currency system fail to realize that there are radical evils which should be overcome. I will name two: First, the concentration of currency in the reserve city of New York, and second, the money of the entire country upon the reserve banks of New York for currency when it is scarce. Second, the lack of elasticity of our currency and inability to increase it as demand requires.

The currency bill which has been introduced both in the senate and in the house meets these two difficulties. It will free the country from dependence upon Wall street. It will facilitate an increase of currency to meet especial demands for same. It will make a currency panic impossible.

I am thoroughly opposed to a central bank. It would be controlled by the same men who now control the currency of the country. I believe that the provision for enlarging the currency should be under government supervision. There are many features in the bill which I thoroughly approve. There are others which I believe should be changed. It will be my purpose to help as I can perfect the bill. Finally, after having sought to make some changes which I think should be made and after helping to bring it as nearly as possible to what I think it should be, I shall not set up my judgment against the bill as perfected although it may lack some features I would wish it to contain, and contain some that I would wish it to lack. I think the Democrats of the house and senate should make it as nearly perfect as possible, and then support it. There are features in the tariff bill against which I voted in the committee, but there comes a time when individual opinion must yield to the majority.

There are two features connected with the currency bill upon which I have *strong convictions. We are using $750,-*000,000 of national bank notes as currency. These notes are secured by the deposit in the treasury of $750,000,000 of bonds issued by the government, and bearing two per cent interest. The banks paid par for bonds bearing only two per cent interest because they could use these bonds bearing two per cent interest as a basis for their national bank notes.

It is urged if the national bank notes are to be withdrawn from circulation it would be only fair for the government to give to the banks a bond bearing a rate of interest which would sell for one hundred cents on the dollar, and those who have invested in the retirement of the national bank notes have suggested that the government call in the bonds bearing two per cent and substitute for them bonds bearing three per cent interest.

I am opposed to the substitution of three per cent bonds for two per cent bonds. Instead of increasing the rate of interest which we paid upon these bonds $7,500,000 a year, I believe that certainly soon after the proposed currency reforms go into effect, the government should take up the two per cent bonds with treasury notes, substituting these treasury notes to the amount of $750,000,000 for the national bank notes. Instead of increasing our interest account $7,500,000 a year, by this course we would reduce it $15,000,000 annually.

We have now $585,500,000 of gold coin deposited in the treasury, and gold certificates issued for it. These gold certificates circulate as money all over the United States. We have $150,000,000 reserve gold held against $346,600,000 of what is commonly called greenbacks. We have $103,500,000 of unapplied gold in the treasury. Our gold coin in the treasury there amounts to $1,237,000,000.

We could easily substitute treasury notes for the gold certificates and for the greenbacks. If we then further more substituted treasury notes for the national bank notes, we could place the $750,000,000 of bonds now bearing interest against the government in the treasury to be used if necessary to increase our supply of gold making really a reserve amounting in gold to $1,237,000,000 and, in bonds, to $750,000,000 against an issue of treasury notes amounting to $2,084,000,000.

The most cautious would concede that this condition would be safe and I vastly prefer such a course to the issue of bonds bearing 3 per cent interest, or even to the continuation of the outstanding 2 per cent bonds.

The currency system would be complete that did not take into consideration the importance of farm credits. Thorough study is now being given to this subject, and I believe in the near future action will be had by which rates of interest charged to farmers may be reduced and increased facilities given for farm loans.

Without discussing further in detail what has been taking place during the past two years in Washington, I wish to say that if every man had forty-eight hours and there was nothing to do but to work, every hour would furnish there an opportunity for service.

THE PRESIDENT.

In conclusion, let me remind you that the last time I spoke in Georgia was at the auditorium when I presented Governor Wilson to the people of the state. I assured the audience of his purpose and ability to serve, and of his strength

GEORGIA AND HER POLITICS

Many Jurists Are Opposed to Rotation of Judges Measures

Considerable opposition has been aroused over the state to the bills in the house and senate which, if passed, will provide for a rotation of the judges of the state from one circuit to another.

This opposition is especially strong among the judges and lawyers of the big city counties where big cases are often in the courts for months and even years, it being argued that under the rotation plan judges who are thoroughly unfamiliar with the litigation would be called to preside when some phase of these cases are being tried.

A rotation bill has been introduced in the senate by Senator W. W. Stark and in the house by Representative D. C. Pickett. The object of these bills is said to remove the judges from personal and political influences in the counties or circuits from which they are elected.

Some Marriage Laws Are Suggested for Georgia

Commenting upon the "eugenics" bills now pending before the legislature, which if passed would require prospective candidates for matrimony to produce certificates of good health and good mentality, the Commerce News says:

"We need some marriage laws in Georgia: one to keep some folks from marrying, and one to make some folks stay married after they get married."

Senator Allen Sighs, But Votes for "No Smoke Rule."

Senator Randolph Anderson was reading the revised rules of the senate Thursday morning prior to their adoption by that August body.

"No senator shall be allowed to smoke in the chamber," he droned out. "I move that this rule be adopted."

Senator John T. Allen heaved a deep sigh from his seat in the left wing, for be it known that Senator Allen is fond of his cigar and cigarette.

"I'm the first man that rule will hit," he murmured. "But here goes," and as the chair called for the vote he shouted: "Aye!".

Senate Feeding On Pesches and Peanuts

Senator R. L. Dickey, of the Twenty-third, and Senator J. T. Hixon, of the Thirty-seventh, are advocates of peaches and peanuts, the former favoring the fruit and the latter the goobers.

The other day Senator Dickey went down to his home in Musella, and sent back to the senators a great basket of Elbertas. But Thursday Senator Hixon was on the job, moving about the senate chamber with one hand in his pocket. Every now and then he would stop beside one of his contemporaries and hand him something.

"These," he would say, "Are the kind of peanuts we grow down in Carroll county." And they were big ones, too.

"Legislative Special" Leaves For Augusta at 7 a. m. Saturday.

All is in readiness for the trip of Georgia's general assembly to Augusta on Saturday. The visiting delegation of Augustans has delivered tickets for the trip and return to every member of the senate and house, and all that remains is to board the special in time for its departure promptly at 7 o'clock a. m. The early start is being made in the cool of the morning to insure a more pleasant trip for the guests and in order that they may have ample time in the city to inspect the state medical college, enjoy the big barbecue at Carmichael's Fishing club and then be taken for an automobile ride through the city and over the perfect roads of Richmond county.

From present indications it is an assured fact that nearly all of the legislators will take advantage of the opportunity to visit the college and partake of the hospitality of their hosts on the banks of the Savannah river.

Famous Football Star Is Clerk in the Senate.

There is one man in the senate chamber who is pointed out to one or more spectators every day as a celebrity, and he's not a statesman, either. But he is just about as famous as the author of the biggest bill of the session.

Bob McWhorter is his name, and if you ever read the sporting columns you know who he is. Bob is getting in training for football at the university next fall by punting words across paper and tackling some wierd formations in those massive bills. He is a copy clerk.

New County Advocates Said To Be Overlooking a Bet.

This from the DeKalb New Era: "There is an effort to make about a dozen new counties to be named for various distinguished citizens, but so far we have not heard of one to be called Jim Woodward or Harry Fisher."

Pages Present Randolph Anderson With Handsome Cuff Buttons.

The pages of the state senate presented President J. Randolph Anderson with a beautiful pair of gold cuff buttons Friday morning in token of their high regard for him.

Senator W. D. McNeil, of the Twenty-second, made the presentation speech for the youngsters. The senator declared that he had been given this honor merely because several other senators had renegued, and he took the opportunity to poke a little fun at some of the members.

Senator Kea, he said, had refused, declaring that never again would he do anything on request since the cruel treatmcnt accorded his bills introduced at the solicitation of the commissioner of commerce and labor. As for Senator Searcy, declared Senator McNeil, that gentleman had professed himself as too busy with 119 prohibition bills to make the presentation.

Following the presentation President Anderson thanked the pages in a short speech.

Former Senator "Bill" Ennis Fined for Contempt of Court.

A special dispatch to The Journal from Rome tells how former State Senator "Bill" Ennis, now solicitor of the Rome circuit, was on Thursday fined for contempt of court. The story follows:

"ROME, Ga., July 18.—Judge Moses Wright, after several years' absence from the bench, has returned and is ruling the Floyd superior court with an iron hand. He created a small-sized sensation yesterday when he fined Solicitor W. H. Ennis and A. W. Bobo $2 each for contempt of court. The men were discussing a business matter, and spoke so loudly that they disturbed the deliberations of the court, with the result that the fine was given them."

CHIEF BEAVERS SMASHING GUNS

Instead of putting on the auction block of, the "ole hoss" sale, Friday, all of the revolvers confiscated from thieves, murderers and thugs during the past several months and so restoring them to circulation for others of like character to make mischief with, the police authorities put them on the anvil Friday, and Chief Beavers smashed the first of them. This was the first time that course had been taken with them. A recent ordinance changed the former practice.

House Bills

The following bills were introduced in the house Friday morning:

By Mr. Reese of Thomas—To amend the charter of the town of Pavo.

By the Muscogee Delegation—To change the time of holding the Muscogee superior court.

By Mr. Holtzclaw of Houston—To authorize the trustees of the Methodist church to sell certain property.

JUDGE BROWN TO RUN FOR SUPREME COURT

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

MONTGOMERY, Ala., July 18.—Armstead Brown, judge of the criminal division of the city court of Montgomery, will be a candidate for associate justice of the supreme court, according to reports that came to Montgomery yesterday. Judge Brown is well known in Alabama. He has been judge of the city court about five years, is interested in state Sunday school work, and has been practicing law in Montgomery several years.

STREAM OF ORATORY SHUT OFF IN HOUSE

WASHINGTON, July 18.—A general flow of oratory on the subject of the Diggs?Caminetti-McNab embroglio in California was demed up today in the house.

Although there had been a general understanding that the Caminetti case was to be open for discussion today, and a half dozen members had prepared speeches, Representative Byrnes of Tennessee carried a motion to lay the Kahn investigation resolution on the table without debate. Practically all of the Democrats voted to close discussion.

ARMED NEGRO DEFIES MOB AND POLICEMAN

MONTGOMERY, Ala., July 18.—Jim White and a shotgun kept a mob and several policemen just outside of a barricaded house in North Montgomery for more than an hour Thursday afternoon. The negro was charged with assault and battery on another negro and refused to be arrested when notified that charges had been preferred against him.

White kept the mob back by threatening to shoot if any one attempted to arrest him. Finally he gave up. He is a brother of Armstead White, who was hanged in Birmingham recently after having been convicted of murder.

A Commendable Plan For Paying the Teachers.

It is cheering to note that at their joint session Wednesday afternoon the House and the Senate committees on education expressed themselves as earnestly in favor of the proposed levy of a special school tax for a period of two years in order that the State's teachers may be promptly paid. A bill providing that a constitutional amendment to this effect be submitted to the people has been introduced by Mr. McMichael, of Marion. It contemplates an assessment of one mill for the first year and whatever fraction of a mill may be necessary to meet the needs of the situation for the second year. Such a measure is so just and so imperative that it should meet every good citizen's approval. Certainly the Legislature should submit it to the voters' consideration. It is to be hoped that the good judgment of the committees on education will be unanimously concurred in by both the House and the Senate.

The proposed levy would place no appreciable burden on the taxpayers but it would enable the State to redeem its good name and to protect its vital interests in the very important matter of paying its school teachers. Under present conditions, the teachers are compelled to wait for their salaries until nearly a year after their services have been rendered. It is a notorious fact that up to the middle of June, 1913, not a penny of the two million, five hundred and fifty thousand dollars appropriated to public schools had been paid.

The continuance of such a policy would be a monstrous injustice not only to those faithful men and women who are devoting their lives, often at heavy sacrifice, to the cause of common school education but also to the pupils and patrons of the schools. For, it is fast becoming evident that Georgia cannot secure competent teachers to take the places of those whom the State's unfair and unbusinesslike treatment has driven to other sections or other pursuits.

The teachers should be paid as regularly and as promptly as other State employes or officials. They should no more be required to wait long months for salaries they have earned than a judge, a governor or a member of the Legislature. Our present slipshod policy in this regard imposes particular hardship on the teachers in rural districts, the very place where the common school system is most in need of encouragement and upbuilding. If there is one group of Legislators who more than any other should be keenly concerned in this issue, it is those who represent the country counties, for, it is upon the children and the homes of such counties that the State's neglect of its teachers' rights falls most grievously.

The time has come when Georgia must face this problem in all its present gravity and its far-reaching consequence and promptly provide a solution or else suffer a costly decline in its educational interests. The proposed levy of a special tax for a period of two years is the most feasible remedy at hand. It merits the cordial support of the Legislature and the people alike.

An Essential Feature Of Tax Reform.

For the same reason that there should be a board of tax equalization in each county, there should be also a central board for the State as a whole. If a county board is necessary to assure the just and uniform payment of taxes by individuals, then certainly a State board is necessary to assure an equable return of taxes by counties. There must be equality of taxation among communities as well as among citizens. If the sorely needed reform of Georgia's fiscal system is to be adequate and vital. Otherwise we shall be attempting, as it were, to play "Hamlet" with Hamlet left out.

It is regrettable that the Ways and Means committee of the House has not more distinctly recognized this principle in the measure of tax revision which it has recommended for adoption. It has approved the creation of county boards but has rejected the all-important provision for State-wide direction and control. Its plan is admirable so far as it goes but it leaves the problem only half solved. Makeshift measures will not suffice the needs of a State whose financial condition is so critical and confused as Georgia's is today.

When the same kind of land is returned in some counties at fifty dollars an acre and in neighboring counties at only three, when property, real and personal, is returned in one county for sixty per cent of its valuation and in an adjoining county for only ten, it is evident that some means of establishing a fair and uniform basis of tax assessments throughout the State is imperative. And until this is done, Georgia's treasury will remain impoverished and her public institutions will continue to be stinted in their needs and checked in their development, despite the fact that she is naturally one of the richst commonwealths in all the Union.

It is this glaring lack of fairness and uniformity in the tax returns of counties as well as of individuals that is chiefly responsible for the State's present inability to pay its teachers and to support those institutions and enterprises which make for our common progress and prosperity. Let this one great defect of our governmental machinery be corrected, and we shall have ample funds for all the State's college as well as its common schools and for the development of many other important fields of endeavor which now must go neglected.

Furthermore, an equalization of taxes will reduce the burden upon the average taxpayer, for, when all citizens meet their obligations as they should, then every citizen's share of government's expense will be lighter. Indeed, the policy of equalization and uniformity is advantageous whether we view it from the standpoint of the individual, the county or the State in its entirety. It means justice to all persons and all interests concerned, that justice which is the only guarantee of enduring prosperity.

The members of the present Legislature have shown so steady a purpose to deal with this question frankly and efficiently that we may hope for a measure of fiscal reform more thoroughgoing than that which the committee has recommended.

It seems, indeed, that members of the committee have been convinced on a sober second thought that the process of tax equalization should extend to the State as well as to the separate counties. That is the policy of practical wisdom which should prevail.

Dog Days in British Politics.

British politics grow seasonably warm again. The House of Lords has refused for a second time to accept the Irish Home bill which the Commons have passed at two successive sessions; whereupon the Liberal ministry renews its threat, and more definitely than before, to take measures for the abolishment of the upper chamber. The Conservatives on the other hand defy the Government to submit the Home Rule plan to a popular vote, insisting that this is the only fair and reasonable method of settling so momentous an issue. The Liberals retort that this is simply a political strategy, designed not to test public sentiment on the question of Home Rule but to provoke a partisan demonstration against the parliament.

It is only necessary for the Liberals to remain in power a year longer in order that Ireland may secure her right to local self government. The Home Rule bill has been adopted in the House twice and, though rejected by the Lords each time, it will automatically become a law if it passes the lower House once more; for, under the new parliament act the Lords may suspend but not, as in years gone by, ultimately defeat a measure which is passed thrice in succession.

Keen interest, therefore, attaches to the prospect of the Liberals' continued power or overthrow. In recent by-elections, their majority has been notably reduced and in some instances converted into a victory for the opposition. Mr. Lloyd George's compul*sory insurance law seems to have bestirred* much discontent among workingmen as well as employers. For all that, however, it is considered likely that the Liberals will retain for a year to come at least a sufficient majority in the Commons to press the Home Rule bill to conclusive success. The opposition is without efficient leadership and has little to the country's constructive thought. The Liberals, despite errors, still stand as the party of progress and action.

July 14.—Up and all morning at petty business, very tiresome. Comes news that my Lord Bryan finds £2,400 per annum not sufficient for his sustenance, wherefor he must go about the land, a-speechinq at Chautauquas, a form of amusement he hath great affection for. These men in politicks do give too little time, meseems, and so ever I have thought, to the matters of state and things of publick concern. To the court, where Will Beebe beat me three setts to one, and then to the apothecary's and had two beakers of ice-cream soda, which I fear is not good for me to do. Home to dinner and thenafter to see a new apartment, with a view to living in it, forasmuch as that wherein we now dwell is less well ordered than I like.

15.—Great news this day that Mistress Inez Milholland is wedded to a man from Amsterdam, that hight Boissevain, which was a great surprise to me, sithen I did see her on the day she sailed to England and she did say nought to me of it. Yet so runs the world away. Also came a message from her from the Netherlands, and so now she is wedded. With R. Lingley and R. Kirby to luncheon and thence to the court, where I did beat Will Beebe three setts to one, what with his having a broken racquet. In the evening tress Alma having a broken racquet. In the evening Mistress Alma to dinner, looking very pretty in a new gowne of dimity.

FREE ICE FOR THE NEEDY

By Frederic J. Haskin

When Saladin sent snow from the tops of Lebanon to the wounded Richard of the Lion Heart he built for himself imperishable fame as a generous foe, for in that time and for centuries thereafter ice in summer was a luxury that only kings and great captains might hope for. Nowadays, in America at any rate, ice is no longer a luxury for city dwellers, but a necessary thing, something that everybody who is above the direst poverty buys for himself, something that charity feels must be furnished to the very poor.

* * *

The recent strike that closed the ice factories of Cincinnati caused such terrible suffering among the babies and among the poorer people that the mayor of the city felt justified in seizing the ice plants and running them in the name of the city, pending the settlement of labor trouble. The ice companies protested with an application for an injunction, but when the mayor showed that he had attempted to obtain ice from other cities and had failed, the court refused for the time being to interfere with the mayor's plans for furnishing ice from privately owned plants. The government of this one American city took the position that ice was an absolute necessity, and that the municipal government could not permit the supply to be stopped, even if forced to resort to the most extreme measures.

* * *

Of course Americans use ice much more freely than do any other people, so freely that Europeans affect surprise that we are at all able to survive the copious draughts of ice water we daily consume, but ice as a preservative of food and for use in the sick room is now looked upon as necessary in every country in the world.

* * *

The housing conditions in American cities perhaps make its use more imperative here than in other countries. That it is looked upon as almost on a par with water is proved by the fact that President McAneny, of the borough of Mannattan, not long ago seriously proposed the municipalization of all the ice plants of New York City.

* * *

A few weeks earlier it developed that the "ice trust" in New York City, without ostentation and without any purpose that the facts ever should become public, had been engaged for years in giving away hundreds of thousands of tons of ice every summer, the companies basing their action on the conviction that everybody in New York should have a bit of ice every day whether able to pay for it or not.

* * *

How much the world owes for baby lives saved, for fevers cooled, for food preserved, for comfort, to Dr. Stephen Goree, of Apalachicola, cannot be estimated. Dr. Goree was the Florida physician who in 1844, in an effort to cool the temperature of the room in which his wife lay ill of a fever, fell upon the secret of making artificial ice. It was nearly twenty years later that his invention was perfected and operated in a commercial way, but since then it has carried "the snows from the tops of Lebanon" to sufferers in every clime.

* * *

In most of the large cities of the United States the need of ice for the poor has become so generally accepted that special funds are provided in the municipal budget each year for this purpose. In others ice is supplied liberally by other organizations, such as the Visiting Nurses, the Associated Charities and the various sick diet stations. Wherever milk is given to a sick baby ice is also likely to be provided to prevent the milk from souring. For this reason ice and milk are frequently distributed from the same stations. A number of cities have organized sterilized milk and ice associations with distributing stations in different parts of the city in order that these two relief objects may be as near as possible to the demand.

* * *

The methods of distribution of ice vary in different cities and in different years according to the sources of supply and the needs. In some cases ice tickets are distributed which are accepted as payment *for a 5 or 10-cent piece of ice if presented at any sta*tion where the ice is being distributed. In others an order to supply ice to a certain address is given to the ice men who deliver it with their regular orders. In cases of sudden illness it is secured through the aid of the visiting nurses or physician. Thousands of tons of ice are each year given to the poor in every large city.

* * *

In this connection it should be noted that few dealers in any commodity are as generous in giving their products to the needy as the ice men. Every social worker knows that an appeal for ice to any dealer is likely to meet with a ready response. Frequently the *ice will be given in bulk to meet some sudden emer*gency. When a boiler explosion in southern Philadelphia injured several score of men one summer, only a few of whom were admitted to the hospitals, one of the ice companies promptly erected a temporary station to which 1,000 pounds of ice were delivered daily for the benefit of the men and boys who were suffering from injuries sustained in the explosion.

* * *

Sometimes an ice dealer will say to the charity organization. "I will contribute 1,000 pounds of ice a week if you can arrange for its distribution without calling for extra service." This may call for some planning, but usually the organization can arrange to co-operate with some dealer handling the ice regularly who will receive the quantity and allow it to be distributed to those having a ticket or order furnished by the organization. In most towns ice tickets are now to be had through some charitable organization. These will be honored by a dealer as readily as the milk tickets in common use.

A wealthy girl went into the crowded section of New York one morning in quest of some one. She lost her way, had her pocketbook snatched, and then tripped and sprained her ankle. Two poor women working in a hot, stuffy room took pity on her and helped her into their close quarters. After some difficulty one of them secured a messenger willing to take a message to her home. For several hours th girl crouched upon the floor, her ankle throbbing with pain, and her senses almost benumbed by the stifling heat. She begged for a drink of cold water, but the lukewarm product from the hydrant repelled her. Yet those poor women working there every day had never had anything else. Her father came to her aid and a few days' care restored her ankle. One of her first acts afterward was to arrange for a cooler in that house with a daily supply of ice in order that every poor, hard-working tenant might at least have within reach the comfort of the Scriptural cup of cold water.

* * *

The visiting nurse is most enthusiastic in her approval of the advantage of being able to supply ice when needed to the sick poor. "No one can understand what it means to a nurse," said one of them recently, "to go into a hot, stuffy room where some one is suffering perhaps with a fever, and be absolutely without any means of lowering this temperature. Many a time I have gone out and bought ice out of my own money because the need was so great I could not bear it. Sometimes a poor girl will come home to the family her scant earnings are helping to support, suffering from a blinding headache which seems impossible to bear. The application of an ice cap, after a tepid bath, may give her a good night's sleep and send her back to work the next morning feeling refreshed. Without it she might toss in pain all night and be unfit for work next day. It is not always possible to have sufficient ice even for every fever patient in a hospital, and in many a home ice cannot be supplied without outside aid."

The Journal's Letter Box

Editor The Journal:

Will you kindly allow me space for a statement in regard to the free kindergartens and their influence on our community? Now that the kindergarten bill is pending, I feel that I must testify as to the practical uses of the kindergartens in various neighborhoods, for not only is the young child considered, both parents, the elder sister and elder brother are planned for in the neighborhood work of our free kindergartens, and I speak after investigation of those in Atlanta.

At first there is a hesitancy on the part of the mother who does not understand the meaning of kindergartens, but she allows her child to go after a visit from the sweet and gentle teacher. The child becomes so interested in the wonderful new ways he is learning that he gradually draws the mother into closer acquaintance with the little group. All unconsciously the child learns his first lessons in good citizenship; he learns nature; he learns to respect others things; he learns that man is a social being, that life is made up of related things; that the individual cannot demand all and give nothing in return; learns to observe closely, to listen acutely, to touch intelligently, to speak softly.

The mother, too, makes up; she keeps better order after the child has explained his day of order in the kindergarten; she stays up late to wash and iron the little garments so that her child may be clean and neat for kindergarten. Finally, she meets with other mothers and the teacher to talk over the varying problems of child culture (she calls it child raising), and to listen to wise things from the gentle person who is making her way with their hearts and homes. For this is the mission of the free kindergarten, to closely interweave itself with the life of the people, to show mothers and fathers the meaning of the privileges of parenthood to instill into the children a very soul the desire to do the beautiful thing; in short, to take these little new souls reverently and lovingly as God's very own, and through them make the earth cleaner and more wholesome.

In our own work the kindergarten has become the neighborhood center; whole families use it as a common meeting ground. If we could incorporate this spirit into our public school system we would have the beginning of our school social centers. Those of us who advocate kindergartens for every child of every class or station look forward to the day when all this wonderful neighborhood work will be carried on by our public schools, when childhood will be understood; when it shall be truly said of our city fathers that a "little child shall lead them."

President Atlanta Free Kindergarten Association.

Nationality and the Shape of the Head

The study of heads reveals some interesting facts. One is that the left side of the head is almost always larger than the right, due, it is said, to the universal practice of using the right hand more than the left. Another curious point is that nationality considerably affects the shape of the head. It would surely be an interesting subject for a biologist to explain why it is that the nearer the equator a race resides the rounder their heads become. No one needs reminding of the round, bullet-shaped skull of the negro, but the hatter will assure us that a Frenchman's head is rounder than an Englishman's, and similarly an Englishman's rounder than a Scotsman's. The average Scot's head tapers considerably toward the front, narrows at the temples, and becomes square and prominent at the forehead. German heads, on the average, are rounder than English, and broader at the back. Irish heads, in general, are long, like the Scotch, but scarcely as narrow.

The Slavonic head is narrow in front and very broad at the back. When the recent peace conference took place in London a few months ago, the first thing that the delegates of the Balkan States did on arrival was to call on hatters. Heath with a demand to be immediately fitted out with the top hats that their new position necessitated; and that famous firm was well-nigh nonplussed to provide, at instant notice, hats of so totally unusual shape.—From "A Study in Hats" in the August Strand.

"The Land of the Morning Calm"

KOREA STILL THE QUAINTEST COUNTRY IN THE WORLD.

Despite the many reforms which the Japanese have introduced into Korea since their annexation of the country after the Russo-Japanese war, says a writer in the August Wide World Magazine, it still retains its ancient and old-world traditions. Indeed, the "Land of the Morning Calm" remains today the quaintest country on the face of the globe, a topsy-turvy world of picturesque people, possessing many strange and curious customs.

This is all the more remarkable when we remember what Japan has done in her attempts to develop and modernize the country. All the principal Korean cities now boast of large Japanese settlements, with wide streets, fine buildings, and up-to-date shops. Roads have been built, railways opened, and the various towns placed in telegraphic communication with one another. The cultivation of cotton and silk has been introduced, and several mines have been opened. Indeed, there are now over half a million Japanese settlers in the country and all the important official and government posts are held by the energetic sons of Nippon. Nevertheless, the moment you get away from the purely foreign quarters, you are in old Korea, where everything is as quaint, out-of-the-common, and non-progressive as it is possible to imagine.

You cannot escape the old-world atmosphere even in Seoul itself, despite its broad streets, electric trams, electric light and modern buildings. The Korean still appears in public in the costume of his ancestors, the kaftan—a flowing white robe of linen, surmounted by an absurd-looking black horsehair top hat. The custom which allows the women of the upper classes to take outdoor exercise only at night is still observed, though men are no longer excluded from the streets at such hours, as was the case before the coming of the Japanese. The natives still worship the god of the mountains, and every village and mountain pass boasts of its shrine, where sacrifices are offered.

Clever Men and Big Heads

Many clever men have big heads, says Gertrude Bacon in the August Strand, but so have many lunatics and imbeciles. The weight of the brain is a surer guide to its quality than the size of the head. Other things being equal brain weight corresponds with intelligence. The average weight for a man is from forty-six to fifty-three ounces—or a woman from forty-one to forty-seven (a bitter fact for advocates of the superiority of the fairer sex). The heaviest human brains known were Dr. Abercrombie's, which was sixty-two and a half ounces, and Cuvier's, the great French naturalist, sixty-one and a half heavier. It falls to the lot of but few geniuses however to have this test applied to them. The brain of a man, on the whole, is about one-fortieth of the weight of his body. Of a dog, but one hundred and twentieth. Only two kinds of animal, the whale and elephant, have larger brains than man, but in both these the proportion to the weight of the body is greatly less.

FUNERAL THIS FRIDAY OF MR. JAMES E. CARLTON

Well-Known Atlantian Died on Thursday—Services at Cleburne Avenue Home

Hosts of friends and business associates throughout the south mourn the death of Mr. James E. Carlton, who died Thursday afternoon about 3 o'clock at a private sanitarium.

About six weeks ago while attending to his mining interests in Twiggs county, Mr. Carlton was thrown from a train and sustained injuries which finally resulted in his death. He was never able to be about after the accident.

Mr. Carlton was one of the pioneer shoe men of Atlanta. He had been actively engaged in the business in Atlanta for about thirty-five years and retired only a year ago to devote his entire attention to his mining interests.

Mr. Carlton came to Atlanta from Lagrange, Ga., when a very young man. He was identified with Mark Berry, Atlanta's oldest shoe house, for a number of years until he and E. R. McKeldin bought out the business and established one in their name. Several years later Mr. Carlton took over Mr. McKeldin's share in the firm and formed the Carlton Shoe company.

This was about seventeen years ago and the company which Mr. Carlton formed then did business on Whitehall street until Mr. Carlton sold his control last year.

Mr. Carlton was a Mason, a Knight Templar and a Shriner. He was an active member of the First Baptist church and had been since he first came to the city. He was formerly a member of the board of deacons of that church.

He is survived by his wife, a son, James Gilbert Carlton, Jr., and three daughters, Misses Maud, Katherine and Emily Carlton, and two sisters, Mrs. J. T. Hall and Mrs. Lewis Pattillo.

The funeral will be held at the residence, 99 Cleburne avenue, in Inman Park, Friday afternoon at 4 o'clock, Rev. Charles W. Daniel will officiate. The official board of the First Baptist church will form an honorary escort and the body will be buried in West View cemetery.

The following will act as pallbearers: Mr. Hugh M. Willett, Mr. Bolling H. Jones, Mr. John R. Dickey, Mr. Ernest Woodruff, Judge H. E. W. Palmer, Dr. Charles E. Currier, Dr. W. S. Elkin, Mr. W. M. Hutchinson.

GOVERNMENT IS SUING TO RECOVER OIL LANDS

William Denham, Frisco Lawyer, Put in Charge of Cases

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, July 18.—William Denman, of San Francisco, was appointed today a special assistant to Attorney General McReynolds to prosecute pending and proposed suits to recover the government's title to millions of dollars' worth of oil lands in California, Wyoming and other western states. The question involves the legality of President Taft's sweeping oil land withdrawals of 1909 to conserve the country's oil resources and especially to afford the government a supply of fuel oil for the United States navy.

Three suits are pending, and Mr. Denman, who will make an extensive investigation of the situation, will soon institute many more. Two actions have been begun in Los Angeles, and recently United States District Judge John A. Riner, of Cheyenne, decided the suit against the Mid-West Oil company adversely to the government, which has taken the case to the United States circuit court of appeals. It will be argued at Denver in September by Assistant Attorney General Ernest Knaebel, who has taken personal charge of this particular suit.

FOREIGN TRADE SHOWS BIG INCREASE FOR 1913

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, July 18.—A new record for the foreign trade of the United States was made in the fiscal year 1913 just closed, as set forth in figures which the department of commerce made public today. Both imports and exports during the year were considerably larger than ever before, imports aggregating $1,812,621,160 and exports $2,463,781,910. For the preceding year the figures were $1,633,264,934 and $2,204,322,409.

The total foreign commerce for 1912 was $4,278,383,070, as compared with $3,857,587,343 for 1912, an increase of $420,795,727, of which $159,336,226 was in imports and $261,439,501 was exports.

MAY NAME SUCCESSOR TO MELLEN AT ONCE

Directors Meet Friday—Elliott, of Northern Pacific, and Willard, of B. & O., Mentioned

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, July 18.—Charles S. Mellen's resignation as president of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad was accepted by the directors this afternoon.

The resignation is to be effective upon the appointment of his successor, whose selection is left in the hands of a special committee.

Directors of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad were to meet here again today to act on the resignation of President Charles S. Mellen, tendered late yesterday.

Although it is understood that some of the directors urged Mr. Mellen to reconsider his decision, yet according to present plans, he will retire as the head of the New Haven and allied lines not later than October 1.

Whether a successor to Mr. Mellen will be agreed upon at the meeting scheduled for today was not announced. Among those mentioned in this connection is Howard Elliott, head of the Northern Pacific.

The name of Daniel Willard, president of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad, was linked with Mr. Elliott's this morning as a possible successor to Mr. Mellen.

While some of the New Haven's directors are said to share the belief that Mr. Mellen's retirement is best, in view of the widespread criticism of his administration, others are said to regret his action at this time.

MELLEN DEFENDED.

A. E. Clark, secretary of the New Haven, said:

"Mr. Mellen has been misunderstood. Five years from now the public will wonder how his policies could have been condemned and who was responsible for such condemnation."

Mr. Mellen tendered his resignation as president of the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad company and all its allied or subsidiary lines, including the various railways, trolley lines and water lines which had become part of the New Haven system under his management.

Charles Sunger Mellen, whose recent management of the New Haven road has given rise to considerable criticism, became president of that system in October of 1903, resigning from the presidency of the Northern Pacific railway at the request of the late J. P. Morgan, who regarded Mr. Mellen as the man who best fitted to reorganize the more or less chaotic transportation lines of the New England states.

Mr. Mellen's immediate predecessor, John M. Hall, had managed the road with all the conservatism which marked the administration of corporate affairs, especially in New England, during the previous decade. Mr. Mellen's advent was the signal for a vast scheme of consolidation, embracing not only the Boston and Maine and Maine Central railroads, but all the leading steamship lines between New York and Boston and intermediate points, as well as various and numerous trolley lines in Connecticut, Massachusetts and New Hampshire. The capitalization of the New Haven system increased enormously under the continuous outlays accruing under the continuous outlays accruing from the acquisitions.

The steady decline of New Haven shares in the local and Boston stock markets has been a matter of comment for several years. New Haven, which for many years, sold at and above 200 and for a long period paid 8 per cent dividends and recently went below par in anticipation of a cut in the dividend, which was reduced to 6 per cent.

Alleged mismanagement of the New Haven road and several serious wrecks, costing many lives, finally resulted in definite action, and a committee of New England stockholders, led by George Von L. Meyer, former secretary of the navy, was organized to make an investigation of the road's affairs. That committee's experts are now at work on the company's books.

Mr. Mellen is under federal indictment for alleged violation of the anti-trust laws and an indictment for manslaughter, resulting from the Westport, Conn., wreck also is hanging over him.

It is known that an influential factor in the board favors the sale of the company's water lines and many, if not all, of its trolley roads. It is believed the New Haven also will relinquish control of the Boston and Maine road.

According to an exhaustive examination made by the New Haven system its assets are estimated at close to $500,000,000 against liabilities of $394,000,000.

Government Probing Operations of Road

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, July 18.—Attorney General McReynolds was asked today if the resignation of President Mellen of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad, would have any effect on the government's investigation of the road's operations in search of violations of the Sherman law.

"I hope Mr. Mellen's resignation indicates a desire on the part of the road to come more closely within the law than it has," was the attorney general's reply. He refused to discuss the subject further.

"BIG BILL" HAYWOOD ILL; PATERSON STRIKE OVER

Elizabeth Flynn Also Indisposed—Silk Mill Operators Return to Work

(By Associated Press.)

PATERSON, N. J., July 18.—The break in the ranks of the silk mill strikers reported yesterday after announcement that "Big Bill" Haywood is physically unable to continue leadership is construed by the mill owners as meaning the end of their five months' trouble with their factory hands. It is estimated that $2,000,000 in wages has been lost, while the manufacturers are about $1,000,000 out of pocket.

The strike began February 25, when 17,500 hands were called out. The first break in the strikers' ranks occurred three weeks ago, when the ribbon and broad silk branches succeeded in operating successfully. The dyers, however, held firm until yesterday, when some of them retrned and it was predicted that the entire body of 3,500 would be at the vats this week. Manufactrers say that the season now lost was the most promising in orders of any since 1907.

Elizabeth Gurley Flynn, the young woman leader, who is at her father's home at New York, has denied that she has deserted the strikers. Her absence from Paterson since Tuesday she excused by saying a sore throat kept her from the work.

Senator Ashurst denied it, and Senator Bristow agreed to produce the telegrams to prove his charge.

Growing Towns

If it's a town with the push and the pride to want to get ahead, the first thing to do is make it a good place to live in.

Is it the kind of place the young fellows will stick to and be proud of and want to rear their families in?

Is it the kind of place visitors will really enjoy visiting? Is it the sort of town you men and women think really worth while?

If it is lacking in CORRECT SANITARY CONDITIONS, it will never get over into the growing column.

Just as well get that town right off.

Sanitary living is the right of the people. It is the just inheritance of the little child. It is the safeguard of the population.

If there's a lurking-place for disease in your home, your family is in danger.

If your town has a breeding place for sickness, you and your neighbors will have to pay the price.

If your town lacks the proper Sewerage facilities, it's in danger.

If the water supply is contaminated, or exposed to contamination, the health of your people is menaced.

If your lighting is inadequate, out-of-date and cheerless, your boys and girls will be the losers. Darkness isn't good for the morals any more than for the eyesight.

Let us talk with you about what your town needs. It's our business to better and boost the town that is ailing. We've cured and cheered more than 300. We'd like to tell you who they are and what we did for them.

Human System Poisons Itself

Otherwise Most of Us Would Live to Be Methuselahs.

Scientists say that almost every moment we are poisoning ourselves. Autotoxemia, they term it, or Self-Poisoning. Eliminate Autotoxemia, and we could live to be hundreds of years old.

All food rots in the stomach some waste, unused particles. This waste ferments and generates uric acid, and when uric acid gets in the blood it poisons the system—self-poisoning. Constipation, indigestion, biliousness, dyspepsia, sick headache, languidness and a weakened physical condition all result from self-poisoning.

JACOBS' LIVER SALT flushes stomach and intestines, dissolves the uric acid which has accumulated and expels it with the fermenting waste.

Take JACOBS' LIVER SALT in the morning before breakfast. You will do a better day's work, and live longer.

JACOBS' LIVER SALT is better than calomel for constipation and biliousness. Acts quickly and more thoroughly, requiring no cleansing after-dose of oil; causes no after-danger of salivation; never gripes or nauseates. It effervesces agreeably. No other liver tonic has the same mild, natural flushing action, though many imitations (in name) are offered. Insist that your druggist supply the genuine JACOBS' LIVER SALT. (By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, July 18.—InGeneral by a favorable report on the Texas crop outlook by a prominent crop-writing expert and easier Liverpool cables, cotton opened steady at a decline of 2 to 5 points. There was no aggressive selling, however, and with the weather map showing another country condition to be the sentiment of the market soon steadied on covering or a little fresh buying.

Prices made a point or two over yesterday's closing before the end of the first hour with the advance encouraged by official forecasts for clear weather, scattered reports of shedding in Texas and boll weevil complaints from Mississippi.

The market showed increased activity and firmness around noon on continued weather reports with prices ruling about 6 to 7 points net higher.

New crop positions sold about 7 to 10 points net higher on the hot weather in the cotton belt and the continued reports from Oklahoma during the early afternoon but the old crop was relatively easy and trading remained quiet.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

(By Associated Press.)

NEW ORLEANS, July 18.—Cotton futures opened steady 2 to 4 points down on poor cables. Weather reports setting developed in the early trading and the market at its lowest stood only 3 to 4 down. The weather map was dry with temperatures moderately high in nearly all sections of the belt and the forecast promised fair weather and the belief was current that scattered showers in the Carolinas. Weather conditions were against short sales and a moderate demand was reported from the trade. Around the end of the first half hour of business prices were inside of 5 points net higher as compared with yesterday's close.

Reports of today was that new cotton was further up at several points but bulls claimed that the forward demand for new crop cotton was good and that the offerings were in limitations of pressure to sell from the early movements. Weather reports from the southwest were not as favorable as they have been and considerable buying was stimulated by them as the day began but the accomplishment of promptors opening of bulls. Soon the trading months were 3 points over yesterday's last quotations.

NEW YORK COTTON LETTER.

NEW YORK, July 18. — The opening was quiet, but there was a disposition on the part of ring crowd to sell at first on the weather and a bearish report from Galveston, Texas. It was soon evident that there was some cotton wanted from strong sources, this acted to stiffen bees among bears and a wave of buying followed. Exciting, it is said, was based on private reports from Texas to the effect that considerable deterioration had set in in several sections of that state. Volume of business, however, is so small that the market is easily influenced either way on very little buying or selling. The position of summer options is causing a hesitancy on the part of those who believe in the bear side to sell this market until they know more of what the outcome will be.—Alexander.

COTTON GOSSIP

Times-Democrat says: Temperatures were not excessively high, but no rain was promised for the west, and talent and trade continued to show some concern over the Texas and Oklahoma situation. In spite of the demand of many senators to listen to anybody who desired to come and start an investigation program. Meanwhile, very few actual danger signals are coming from the west, though advices relating to possible shedding are heard from the hot, dry weather are numerous.

The only people that much weather is against the world, and is otherwise beneficial in that it promotes better maturity. On the whole, however, the crop outlook is favorable. The market is now merely awaiting the new movement, when many traders believe new conditions will bring a buying power. It is still well taken care of and no cotton is going begging for sale.

Weather map shows generally fair except local in Texas and boll belt. Parts of Alabama, Atlantic coast, scattered showers in Texas and Mississippi and some good rains Atlantic states about normal. TAX INCREASE TO PAY TEACHERS IS FAVORED

Committee Ready for Report. Senate Committee Puts O. K. on Compulsory Education

The house committee on constitutional amendments was ready Friday morning to recommend for passage the bill providing for an additional ad valorem tax of one mill to insure the prompt payment of the teachers of Georgia. This bill, if passed, will increase the present tax rate to six mills for two years. The committee voted in executive session Thursday afternoon for the passage of the bill.

The action of this committee following closely upon the pledge of the house and senate education committees to aid relief for the situation whether by tax increase or a bond issue of $1,-000,000, is taken to indicate that the general sentiment of the legislature favors the former. It is believed by the advocates of the bill that this tax will be sufficient to insure the prompt payment of all teachers and as a result there will be little more heard of the proposal to issue bonds.

FAVOR NEW COUNTY.

The creation of the new county of Hardeman, with Alma as the county seat, went to the house Friday morning with a favorable report. The county proposes to take strips from Appling, Ware and Coffee for its territory. The Northern county proposition, proposing to take practically the same sections of the three counties was killed.

The penitentiary committee reported favorably on bills for indeterminate sentence, inspection of jails and a measure giving the prison commission the power to fix salaries of wardens and physicians.

FOR COMPULSORY EDUCATION.

The education committee of the state senate reported favorably on two bills Friday morning, following a hearing on them in the senate chamber Thursday afternoon. The bill of [illegible] McNeil, providing for free [illegible]tens in connection with Georgia's [illegible] school system and Senator Sweat's compulsory education bill were those recommended for passage.

President Randolph Anderson, George J. Baldwin, head of the Savannah Kindergarten association; Mrs. E. B. Smith, of Atlanta; Miss Carol Oppenheimer, of Savannah; Miss Willette A. Allen, of Atlanta; C. H. Barnes, of the Atlanta Federation of Trades; Mrs. William Hahn, president of the Atlanta Kindergarten association; Mrs. Robert Zahner, Mrs. James H. Little and several other prominent men and women were present to favor the bill.

The measure is not stringent, but simply provides that kindergartens be established in those schools which wish them, the money to be taken from the common school fund.

Following State School Commissioner M. L. Brittain's speech, the compulsory education bill was favored. It requires that children between the ages of eight and twelve years, and those between twelve and fourteen, not regularly employed, attend school at least twelve months out of the year. It requires of all children an education equal to four year's of grammar school work. The bill stands a good chance of passing.

Revolvers Are Barred From "Old Hoss" Sale

For the first time since the city became a city the police "ole hoss" sale Friday morning did not include any confiscated revolvers. The revolvers were put upon the block, all right, but it was a literal block, and a heavy sledge hammer smashed them into junk.

At all previous "ole hoss" sales the revolvers taken from thugs, thieves and murderers of every degree have been put into circulation again for the further taking of human life, by being auctioned along with the other unclaimed property gathered by the police. A city ordinance stopped the practice.

Numerous bicycles, some old horses of the department and a lot of other miscellany composed the wares disposed of in Friday's sale.

About 1,000 pocket knives of every description were among the articles sold. They brought an average of two cents each; several chickens and a turkey were auctioned. There were a few books also, including some histories and a work on botany. Four pairs of shoes brought $1.75. Forty-four hats and caps were sold for $3.25. The bicycles, of which there were a number, brought $1 to $5 apiece. Chief Beavers was the auctioneer.

To Stop Scaling of Psoriasis

This Troublesome Skin Disease Promptly Checkes by a very Simple Attention.

A lady in Lexington, Ky., says that before she began using S. S. S. psoriasis broke out at frequent intervals where she thought it cured. But by getting her blood under control by the influence of S. S. S., the disease entirely disappeared and there was never again the slightest sign of it.

There is one ingredient in S. S. S. which peculiarly stimulates cellular or glandular activity to select from the blood or from the fine network of blood vessels in the skin, those elements which it requires for regeneration.

Thus pimples, acne, eczema, lupus, or any other blood condition that attacks the skin or seeks an outlet through the skin, is met with the antidotal effect of S. S. S.

You can get S. S. S. in any drug store, but insist upon having it. The Swift Laboratory in Atlanta, Ga., prepares this famous blood purifier, and you should take no chance by substituting anyone to recommend a substitute. And if your blood condition is such that you would like to consult a specialist freely, address the Medical Dept., The Swift Specific Company, 182 Swift Bldg., Atlanta, Ga.

SENATE SPENT MORNING PASSING LOCAL BILLS

Senator Kea Introduces Bill to Separate Races on Trolley Cars

Friday morning's session of the state senate was productive of no legislation further than the passage of a number of local bills and one measure of general interest.

This was a bill introduced by Senator Smith and passed by substitute of Senator McNeil. It reads: "To provide verdicts and judgments to be rendered at appearance term of city and superior courts of state upon suit or unconditional contracts in writing and verified accounts where no plea or lawful defense is filed thereto."

The measure resulted in a hot debate by the "senate lawyers" which lasted for over an hour. Indeed, it was so warm that Senator Elkins became excited and addressed the senate as "gentlemen of the jury." It was finally passed by vote of 28 to 12.

Senator DuBose introduced a resolution setting the third reading of the Barrow county bill for a special order next Wednesday morning. The resolution has not yet been acted upon.

Senator Kea introduced an interesting measure which provides that separate street cars be provided for white and colored people in cities over 20,000 in population and that cars with separate compartments for the two races be provided in cities of smaller population.

CONFIRM APPOINTMENTS.

The senate went into executive session long enough to confirm the following appointments nominated by Governor John M. Slaton:

Miller S. Bell to be a member of the board of directors of the Georgia Normal and Industrial college for a term of six years from January 6, 1914, for the county of Badwin.

Ben M. Turnipseed to be judge of the city court of Fort Gaines for a term of two years from August 29, 1913.

P. S. King, to be solicitor of the city court of Fort Gaines for a term of two years from August 27, 1913.

S. H. Sibley to be judge of the city court of Greensboro for a term of four years from September 17, 1913.

S. L. Drawdy to be judge of the county court of Clinch county for a term of four years from October 28, 1913.

W. T. Dickerson to be solicitor of the county court of Clinch county for a term of two years from October 28, 1913.

MINISTERS DEBATE BILL FOR BIBLE IN SCHOOLS

Senate Committee to Resume Hearing Tuesday—Protest From Hebrews

The rehearing by the senate committee of arguments for and against the Searcy-Bush bill requiring the Bible to be read in classes of schools supported by the state, started Friday morning, had not concluded when the committee adjourned at 10 o'clock and was continued until Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock. In the meantime several of the ministers who attended the hearing Friday morning will preach on the topic in their pulpits Sunday.

A large crowd of ministers attended the hearing Friday. Only four speakers were heard. The others present were divided in their view. Dr. John E. White, pastor of the Second Baptist, who did not speak, expressed privately his opposition to the proposed measure. Others agreeing with him, but who did not speak, were Father Rapier, of Sacred Heart Catholic parish; Rabbi Marx, of the leading Jewish congregation of the city; Dr. Rowlett, the Unitarian minister, and others. Opposed to the view taken by these were Dr. H. M. DuBose, Dr. Charles Daniel, Dr. B. P. Robertson, Dr. J. B. Robins and others.

The speakers were Carlisle B. Haynes, representing the Georgia Religious Liberty association, and Dr. C. B. Wilmer, Episcopal, who spoke against the proposed measure, and Dr. A. A. Little and Dr. Dunbar Ogden, Presbyterian ministers, who spoke for the bill provided it is amended so that the Bible shall be read without comment or theological interpretation and also so that if parents object their children may be excused from hearing the reading.

Dr. Wilmer argued that church and state must not be mixed. "Render unto Caesar the things that are Caesar's," he quoted, adding that to God should be rendered the things that are God's. The church should be permitted by the state to attend to its own business, said he.

Shelby Myrick, of Chatham, chairman of the house committee on constitutional amendments, has received a protest from a Hebrew congregation against the bill.

Myrick, of Chatham, chairman of the committee on constitutional amendments.

The telegram, which is signed Joseph Rosenheim, president, reads as follows:

"On behalf of the Hebrew congregation Mickva Israel, we earnestly request you and other members from Chatham to do your utmost to prevent the enactment of the proposed law on compulsory study of the Bible in public schools."

DR. MELL C. MARTIN IS NOW BRIGADIER GENERAL

Popular Atlanta Physician Heads North Georgia Brigade of U. C. V.

The scores of friends in Atlanta of Dr. M. C. Martin will be delighted to hear that he has been elected brigadier general of the North Georgia brigade of the United Confederate Vetrans. The election occurred Thursday at the reunion of the Georgia division in Brunswick.

Dr. Martin was not present at the Brunswick meeting, and his election was a happy surprise to him, coming as it did as a tribute from his comrades to his valor as a soldier.

Dr. Martin, henceforth to be known as General Martin, is the father of Mrs. George Brown, of Atlanta.

General Martin was born in Floyd county, near Rome. His father was a Methodist minister. He was reared in Dalton. In 1862 he ran away from school and enlisted in the Thirty-fourth Georgia regiment, and became a sergeant major. He took part with the regiment in numerous battles, particularly those of the Atlanta campaign, including the battles of Atlanta and Jonesboro. He moved to Atlanta in 1872, and graduated from the Georgia Medical college in 1882. He is a member of Camp Walker, U. C. V.

Miss Jennie D. Harris was hostess at tea this afternoon at her home on Peachtree street, in compliment to Mrs. Samuel Dick, a recent bride.

The rooms, where the guests were received, were banked with palms and handsome growing plants and crystal vases held many lovely pink roses.

Tea was served from a table having for its center a slender silver vase holding gladioli shading from palest pink to deepest coral, and the suggestion of pink was continued in ices and bonbons.

Miss Harris wore a gown of rose pink crepe, the bodice formed of shadow lace and broacaded chiffon; Mrs. Harris, who assisted in the entertainment of the guests, was gowned in black embroidered crepe de chine.

Invited to meet the guest of honor were a number of Miss Harris' friends among the young married contingent.

TULLE HAT

Miss Warfield's Luncheon

An informal and very pleasant event of the day was the luncheon given by Miss Theodora Warfield at the Capital City Country club.

A group of young girls assembled for luncheon and the afternoon was devoted to swimming and tennis.

Mrs. W. C. Warfield and Mrs. J. P. B. Allan chaperoned the merry party of young people, among whom were Miss Dorothy Robbins, of Birmingham; Miss Helen Wilson, Miss Marie Cobb, Miss Nina Jennings, Miss Dodo White, Miss Thurman, of New York; Miss Marie Griffith, Miss Helen Atkisson, Miss Lucile Atkisson, of Lake City; Miss Lyndale Haddon, Mrs. J. Miss Verdery had two tables of bridge for her, and the prizes, silk hose, were won by Miss Marian Fleming and Miss Carolyn Cumming.

Last evening Miss Hull entertained a number of young people at the moving pictures, followed by an informal supper at her home.

Mrs. Joseph Fargo entertained Monday afternoon with a beautiful bridge party in honor of Miss Lipscomb. Pink and white was the color scheme, and the idea was carried out not only in the charming flowers that adorned the spacious rooms, but in the prizes, which were pink slipper trees, decorated with pink rosebuds, and in the ices and cakes. Miss Alice Hull won the first prize and Miss Teague cut the consolation.—Augusta Chronicle.

The Evening Story

(Copyright, 1913, by W. Werner.)

Dry Cleaned

Katharine paused and looked hesitatingly at the sign: "Skirts sponged and pressed, 25 cents; dry cleaned, $1.00." She was on her way home from work. Without doubt her black skirt needed pressing. Last night she walked home (that is, to the rooming house she called home) in a driving rain, and it hung in wrinkled folds. The manager had looked at it significantly three times that day. In the spick and span candy store where she clerked she had to cross the aisles from counter to counter many times a day. A wrinkled skirt was noticeable. And the manager had hinted that trimness was essential if one would be a successful saleswoman.

Yet, could she spare 35 cents with pay day half a week away? She counted and decided that she could. Anyway, she simply wouldn't dare to wear that skirt next day, and her landlady scowled at using gas for ironing. She hurried down the last two blocks, changed the skirt for a shabby navy blue, a relic of the days when her father was living, and she didn't have to buy the black required by employers, brought the wrinkled skirt back and told the young fellow that she must have it that same night. He demurred. That was too little time, he said. But she explained without any false pride that she couldn't go to work the next morning without it. The black serge and the navy blue constituted her whole wardrobe, as far as skirts were concerned.

"All right, 10:30," he promised. "Sure we keep open till then."

Katharine went around the small basement cafe in the next street for supper. She was hungry, and she ordered pork and beans, a dish of which she was not particularly fond. But the amount of pork and beans purchasable for 10 cents outclasses any other in filling capacity and by a week is restricting.

At 10:30 she went back for the skirt. He pushed it toward her in a green cardboard box. "One dollar," the young man said, nonchalantly.

"Why," gasped Katharine, "I thought it was only 35 cents."

"No, dry cleaning is a dollar," he told her absently, while he continued to check up papers. "You distinctly said dry cleaning."

Katharine miserably opened her purse. She believed him. She knew too well her own wrong kind of absent-mindedness. Hadn't she that very day, at the shop, in repeating a telephone order, changed candied cherries to cherry candy, and been reprimanded afterward by a testy manager? Sixty-five cents meant that four and one-third meals must be eliminated from her dietary for the next three days. She handed the dollar over and received the skirt.

The young fellow looked up in time to catch the unconscious woe of her expression. "I'm sorry," he said, courteously.

"It doesn't matter," said Katharine in a dreary tone that betrayed very well that it mattered greatly.

Listlessly she carried the dress back to her room. Even the sight of the neat, smooth skirt did not cheer her. All the depression of three years past pushed upon her in an overwhelming flood. She was tired of struggling, skimping, pretending to be cheerful. And the next evening she felt worse. Leta, who roomed next door, came in and added to her pains. Leta was little and pretty. Happiness radiated from her fluffy yellow hair and big blue eyes. "Hook my dress, will you, Katharine?" she asked breathlessly. "I'm late, and Jim simply raves if he has to wait. Hot, isn't it?" We're going out to the beach. Thanks." And she rushed back.

Katharine looked disconsolately at her own prim, brown hair and thin, tired face. No Jim ever would become she was late or took her out to the beach. She was only twenty-two, yet she might have been thirty-five. With graying hair, for all the attention that came her way. She wondered sometimes at night how it would seem to rush home, dress in a whirl of haste and be taken out to parks or beach. And usually, being very tired, she was content to go to bed and sleep so as to be fresh for the next day.

She went to bed and cried, partly for the parents lying in the earth and partly because she hadn't Leta beside them. When one is ordinary looking and rather stupid, so that a $7 clerkship is as high as you ever likely climb, life is a gray affair. Also that unexpected drain of 65 cents had nipped her supper allowance and a sandwich and a piece of pie had not been satisfying.

And the next day it rained—a treacherous rain that fell heavily one minute and withdrew in favor of a shining sun the next. The sun was shining when she stepped out of the store, so she started to walk home as usual. Nickels were far too scarce that week to be wasted unless a steady downpour cover the two miles between. Every and her rooming house before a heavy shower came, but half way it caught her and she had to take refuge in a drug store and wait until it lessened. Even then her skirt was slightly spotted.

The rain ceased, the setting sun peeked out for a last glint and she hurried on. Two blocks further, as she skipped across the street, a big dray turned suddenly. To avoid it she had to squeeze between its rear wheel and a delivery wagon standing by the curbing, and both muddy wheels scraped her skirt. On the right the dray left broad bars of brown mud, on the left the wheel of the delivery wagon left a monstrous smudge of black slush. Katharine looked down when she had reached the farther pavement in dismay too great for words. And then the rain began to pour again—not a spatter of drops this time, but a furious flood.

She stopped in the doorway of a hall and waited for twenty minutes until the heavy shower became a drizzle, then she plodded on, while her thin lawn waist clung to her arms, and her skirt, growing wetter each minute, hung limply against her tired limbs.

She was brought to a stop by some—one crying: "Say, wait a minute!" She looked around. Without realizing it she was nearly home, and the young fellow of the cleaning establishment was in front of her. "I want to see you," he said earnestly. "It was a mistake the other night."

She followed him inside his store, not quite understanding and without enough energy to try to understand. From a drawer behind the counter he took some change, 65 cents, and handed it to her. "I made a mistake. Your skirt was merely sponged and pressed. Say, it needs it again. It's soaked. Why didn't you—" He broke off, reddening. Of course people who can ride don't walk when it is raining.

Katharine smiled radiantly. When one had expected to spend 5 cents for supper it was intoxicating to have 65 handed over. He looked at her curiously. "I looked for you last night," he said, "but you must have got past while I was waiting on somebody." He hesitated; then, half boldly, "Live around here?"

"Yes. Just around the corner of the next street. Mrs. Gibbs' rooming house, I guess," reluctantly, "that I better bring the skirt over and have it pressed again."

"It looks bad," he agreed. "I room in the next block. Lived in the city long?"

It was Katharine's turn to look seriously at him. There was an undertone of wistfulness in his voice. She saw a thin young fellow with nice gray eyes, smooth brown hair and freckles. "Yes," she answered. "Haven't You?"

"No," and with a short laugh, "it's darn lonesome. I suppose," more wistfully, "that the evening don't bother you, living here and knowing lots of people. But I just keep this place open to have something to do after supper."

Katharine opened her eyes. She had not supposed that a man had any trouble spending his evenings pleasantly. And this one was nice looking.

"WHAT DOES HE SEE IN HER?"

Katharine decided that she seldom saw such nice, serious eyes. She hesitated, then blurted: "I wish I had a place to keep me busy evenings!"

"You do! Say," he leaned across the counter, "my landlady knows Mrs. Gibbs. If she introduces me, would you let me take you out to the beach some night?"

Outside the sun sent a last faint sparkle. Katharine's eyes outshone it. After all, life and rain weren't such unpleasant facts. "Yes," she said shyly.

LITTLE STORIES FOR BED TIME

By Thornton W. Burgess

Copyright, 1913, by J. G. Lloyd.)

Peter Rabbit stared and stared at the tracks in the soft mud of the swamp in the Old Pasture. He would look first at the tracks, then at his own feet, and then back at the tracks again. He scratched his long left ear with his long left hind foot. Then he scratched his right ear with his long right hindfoot, all the time staring his hardest at those strange tracks. They certainly were the tracks of a Rabbit, and it was equally certain that they were not his own.

"They are too big for mine, and they are too small for Jumper the Hare's. Besides, Jumper is in the Green Forest and not way off up here," said Peter to himself. "I wonder—well, I wonder if he will try to drive me away."

You see Peter knew that if he had found a strange Rabbit in his dear old briar patch he certainly would have tried his best to drive him out, for he felt that the old briar patch belonged to him. Now he wondered if the maker of these great tracks would feel the same way about the Old Pasture. Peter looked troubled as he thought it over. Then his face cleared.

"Perhaps," said he hopefully, "he is a new comer here, too, and if he is I'll has. Perhaps he simply has big feet have just as much right here as he has, and if that's the case I'd like to see him drive me out!"

Peter swelled himself out and tried to look as big as he could when he said this, but swelling himself out this way reminded him of how stiff and sore he was from the wounds given him by Hooty the Owl, and he made a sore face. You see he realized all of a sudden that he didn't feel much like fighting.

"My," said Peter aloud, "I guess I better find out all about this other fellow before I have any trouble with him. The Old Pasture looks big enough for a lot of Rabbits, and perhaps if I don't bother him he won't bother me. I wonder what he looks like. I believe I'll follow these tracks and see what I can find."

So Peter began to follow the tracks of the strange Rabbit, and he was so interested that he almost forgot to limp. They led him this way and they led him that way through the swamp and then out of it. At the foot of a certain birch tree Peter stopped.

"Ha!" said he, "now I shall know just how big this fellow is."

How was he to know? Why, you see, that tree was a kind of Rabbit measuring trick. Yes, sir, that is just what it was. You see Rabbits like to keep a record of how they grow, just as some little boys and girls do, but as they have no doors or walls to stand against they use trees. And this was the measuring tree of the Rabbit whose tracks Peter had been following. Peter stopped at the foot of it and sat down to think it over. He knew what that tree meant perfectly well. He had one or two measuring trees of his own on the edge of the Green Forest. He knew, too, that it was more than a mere measuring tree. It was a kind of "no trespassing" sign. It meant that some other Rabbit had lived here for some time and felt that he owned that part of the Old Pasture. Peter's nose told him that, for the tree smelled very, very strong of Rabbit—of the Rabbit with the big feet. This was because whoever used it for a measuring tree was sure to rub himself against it as far up as he could reach.

Peter hopped up close to it. Then he sat up very straight and stretched himself as tall as he could, but he wisely took care not to rub against the tree. You see he didn't want to leave his own mark there. So he stretched and stretched, but stretch as he would he couldn't make his wobbly little nose reach the mark made by the other Rabbit.

"My sakes, he is a big fellow!" exclaimed Peter. "I guess I don't want to

AFTERNOON GOWN

Afternoon gown of black satin with a tunic and bodice of white Arabian lace and an extra high girdle of black satin with a flat bow at the back. The hat is a white leghorn trimmed with black tulle.

What Anne Ritten' house Says

THE subject of neckwear is a fascinating subject in hot weather. Ups and downs, its defeats and successes, its new inventions and old revivals, are always taken up with enthusiasm by the buying public. Women like neckwear. It represents variety and economy, comfort and discomfort.

There is at least no more discussion about the high and the low neck. So far as the present season is concerned. The American idea has won out. Or rather, one might call it the Anglo-Saxon idea. You see the British women have been collarless for so man generations that it is second nature with them to design a gown in this way.

The French have led the way for centuries in high-necked apparel. They like to cover their neck and their heads, even if they uncover their ankles and their knees. The Anglo-Saxon idea is just the reverse.

While France has worn a boned stock to the ears and a picture hat to its restaurants and theaters, the Anglo-Saxon has gone bare-headed and bare-shouldered into any public place after candlelight.

Whether or not the French idea is the better, is neither here nor there regarding fashions. It is an old and mooted question which has never been clinched by arguments on either side or settled once and forever.

The American has fluctuated between the two, not because she is a weak creature in anything, but because her curiosity is more alert and ardent than the curiosity of any other woman and she tries out everything on herself, for good and evil. Then she is apt to know what she thinks, but not until then.

At present it looks as though she had made up her mind that the Anglo-Saxon way is the way for her, and the American climate from May to October bears out her judgment.

The Medici Collar.

The Robespierre has held its own throughout the eighteen months of its life, and because of its comfort and attractiveness let us hope that it will remain in stock for years to come. It has been abused as has every other fashion, but this does not destroy the truth of its attractiveness.

When women began wearing it on the street and exposing two or three inches of the chest below the neck, there was a protest from all the critics. It did seem to be an unnecessary fashion for the winter months and it was an ugly fashion when the coat collar was of dark cloth and came over the white Robespierre. Then women learned to pull the collar out over the coat and the appearance of women in mass was at once benefited.

This was the first collar that brought the covered line high at the back of the neck and we are now in the flood tide of this fashion. One no longer sees the back of the neck exposed at any hour but in the evening, when one wears a formal gown. Even theatre frocks and informal dinner gowns have transparent fabric brought up to the nape of the neck and there finished with an upstanding frill or a flat turn-over according to the kind of line that each face requires.

The woman who wants to wear the Medici collar must be quite sure that her face will stand it. The genuine thing is a flaring affair that is featherboned to stand out and away from the head and finished with a flat bow. The Amerilless for so man generations that it is second nature with them to design a gown in this way.

Conzelman Off And Pelicans Copped Game

Crackers Go Ten Innings With New Orleans Before Losing, Error in Left by Bailey Proved Big Help

NEW ORLEANS, July 17.—The Pels took the first game from Atlanta Thursday afternoon after it seemed that the Crackers would get away.

The team that leads the league the wrong way woke up and played good ball all the way through, hitting Conzelman eleven times.

Conzelman's wildness was largely responsible for the locals runs. He issued two passes in the second and two runs resulted. One in the fourth figured in another run and a wild pitch in the seventh, after two men had been nipped at the plate, gave the Pels the run that tied the score. Williams, who scored the winning run in the tenth drew a pass.

For Atlanta, Bisland, Alpermann and Chapman played great ball. Chapman received 13 putouts, and two assists accepting these chances without an error. For New Orleans Kraft, a utility man, played a good game at first base and rapped on the ball consistently. He hit the Permit cigar sign $25.00 worth in the seventh inning.

The game was played in sweltering heat.

BUNTS AND BINGLES
BY J. V. MURPHY

The present doubt as to whether or no Wilding, the tennis champ, will represent England in the Davis cup matches, will be answered in the affirmative if the elastic British sport "laws" can possibly stand the stretching.

ONE SHOULD LOOK AROUND A BIT.

One major league stunt has come out with the announcement that young ball players this year are unusually weak. He goes even deeper into the question by stating that practically none will go higher with the end of the present season.

For any man who follows baseball as a profession to make such a statement is certainly absurd. Why, right here in the Southern league there are any number of players who are bound to go higher and many will certainly stand the pace. And reports from other leagues leave the impressions that there are other good players who will stand the test that is handed out to them when they join the majors.

CRACKERS ARE STARS.

Right here on the Atlanta club are several good ball players who are certainly worth a trial in the majors. Take the case of Wallace Smith. This lad knows as much baseball as any minor leaguer that ever wore a glove, has a good batting record and at fielding has yet to make his first mistake. And Tommy Long, Carl Thompson, Harry Welchonce, Joe Conzelman, Gilbert Price and Harry Welchonce do not look especially bad. When you compare them to some of the boys who are now doing duty up higher you can readily see that there is class to the Southern league bunch.

Fred C. Thompson, the Los Angeles clergyman who won his third all around athletic championship the other day, will probably use as the text of his next sermon, "The Church Militant."

Last season in the Southern league there was an abundance of real good young players. Many of them went higher and a majority stuck to the guns and right now are putting up a real good game. They demonstrated that the education they receive in the Southern league equips them for work in the big ring and just as long as this league continues to send up such good men as Speaker, Jackson and a few others the scouts will draft from them each season.

In many of the minor leagues, if reports are to be believed, there are a goodly number of promising young players and many are sure to get a trial higher. You know the major leagues wear out a number of ball players with each campaign and youngsters have to be secured to take their places. This year just as many as ever are sure to give way to Father Time and there must be an equal number to step into their shoes. The game requles a certain number of players and they will go from the minors to majors just as long as the game is kept on its present high standard.

Old Athletes Try Old Game

Reunion Held in New York, Some Got Out of Bed to Take Part

NEW YORK, July 18.—Men who made records when American sports was in its swaddling clothes are making a three-days' celebration or the twenty-fifth anniversary of the opening of Travers island, the famous summer home of the New York Athletic club. The first gathering of old-time athletes there yesterday was something of the scenes and sentiment which marked the recent reunion of the blue and the gray at Gettysburg. Most of the old men made some sort of pretense of doing through the *things they did when they were twenty-*five years younger, and as in the case of some, 200 pounds or so lighter.

The "oldest living athlete," Ed Carter, was wheeled onto the track, in a rolling chair with a trained nurse protesting against his participating in the games. "Pop," as he is affectionately known, held for twenty-three years the American record for the five-mile run, and he *insisted on being able to negotiate the 352-*foot lap track just once. He started nimbly with an excellent stride, but he was panting from exhaustion when he returned to his wheel chair. Harry Bure*meyer, the founder and first champion of* the shot put, hale and hearty at the age of seventy-four years, was also on hand. He wouldn't get into athletic togs but he condescended to take off his hat and try a few shot puts with Bernie Wefers, an old rival. They tied at "a respectable distance." O. L. Richards, formerly one of the bowling champions fondly caressed one of the timber gates. but ne couldn't be induced to try a "light.

LaGrange Wins Out

LAGRANGE, Ga., July 18.—LaGrange met Talladega in the first game of the series and defeated them by a score of 3 to 2 in one of the best games witnessed by local fans this season. It looked like a ten-inning game when in the ninth LaGrange scored the winning run.

Abel Is Here For His Bout With C. White

Thirty-Four Rounds of Boxing Is Billed for Friday Night at Auditorium–Both Boxers in Trim

Jake Abel and Charley White, the two clever middeweight boxers who are headliners in thirty-four rounds of boxing at the auditorium on Friday night, are in the city and in shape. They report that they have trained hard and earnestly and right now are ready to step into the ring and give fandom a run for its money.

Abel has trained at his gym in Memphis, while White, since his July Fourth scrap with Jack Britton, has taken a thorough course of training at his place *in Chicago. He is known to be a hard-*working, hard-punching lad and will be rignte after Abel all the way.

Jake Abel, who is well known in Atlanta, was a visitor at The Journal of*fice during Friday morning and later a* neatly trimmed athlete was introduced as Charley White. As the other boxers have been in the city some time, the whole program is most likely.

All of the other boxers who are mixed up in the program are on the ground. This list includes Kid Young, Charlie Lee, Eddie Hanlon, Terry Nelson, Young Abe Attell and Tim Callahan.

Abel reports that he is in fine trim. He has a magnificent gym in Memphis and by his strenuous work there always keeps in condition. He has studied White's tactics and is sure that he can successfully combat the Chicago lad. Jake has long been known as the cleverest of boxers and White is sure to have a tough time getting through his guard. Besides being a clever boy with the gloves Jake can stand a lot of punishment and is always ready and willing to rush the match.

White is a bit smaller than Abel and is known as quite a tough lad. He is the kind who wades in and is willing to take a punch or so to land one good one. While very small for a lightweight he knows how to hit so it will hurt worse and Abel will be kept busy covering if he wishes to stay the ten-round limit.

The program for the carnival, which is for the purpose of purchasing uniforms for the Fifth regiment band, consists of thirty-four rounds of boxing. Included in this are ten-round bouts between Abel and White, Young and Lee, Hanlon and Nelson and a four-rounder between Young Abe Attell and Tim Callahan.

STARS OF ONE DAY

Johnston, of Cleveland, did not hit safely. He was up four times.

Joe Jackson hit safely once out of four times.

Bob Byrne got two out of five.

Zack Wheat hit safely once in four trials.

Jake Daubert came up four times and turned aloose one hit.

Red Smith uncorked three hits in five trials.

Erskine Mayer was used again as a fill-in pitcher Thursday, pitching one inning and then being taken out to allow Magee to bat. Mayer has been used in quite a few games in that capacity.

JOHNSON TIED WHITE'S SCORELESS ROUND MARK

WALTER JOHNSON AND "DOC" WHITE.

Here they are, the greatest shut-out pitchers in baseball—both in the American league.

Introducing first Walter Johnson, of the Washington team, sometimes the 'Idaho Cyclone," who owns the speediest ball since Amos Rusie ceased starring to become one of our best known lumber shovers.

On the right we have "Doc" White, of the White Sox. White is famous as the only man who kept Ty Cobb's goat for more than one season. White is a regular fellow in every respect save one—he is left-handed.

According to the "dope" White set a mark some years ago by pitching fifty-six successive innings of shut-out ball. This has been denied by some, but it is generally accepted.

To all intents this was a world's record, although some one dug up an alleged performance of seventy-seven score*less innings made so long ago that it* can't be authenticated.

Walter Johnson, the hurling hurricane of the Nationals, started out this spring to copper White's best bet. Af*ter being scored upon in the first inning* of the first game by one of Frank Chance's ambitious young men, Johnson refused to give another run until May 14, in the third inning at St. Louis, when with one down, a double and single scored a runner. And this was the first earned run made off Johnson this year.

When the statisticians began figuring they discovered that Johnson had tied White's remarkable performance of pitching fifty-six innings without a run.

As White and Johnson are friends, people may ask if Johnson wasn't content to tie White's record score after duplicating the performance of Comis*key's left-handed phenom.* It is a pretty thought and one that doesn't seem unusual in the case of a man of Johnson's caliber.

NOW ROOM IN GAME FOR COLLEGE STARS

Frank Chance Great Believer in the Young Collegian and His Ability

"Summer baseball may be criminal in the eyes of the college professors, a menace to pure, immaculate amateur athletics, and all that sort of thing, but the varsity star who has won his letter and passed muster before the big league scout need not worry over his future," said Frank Chance, manager of the New York Yankees, recently in discussing the mooted question. "The publicity given Jim Thorpe, the Carlisle Indian and champion all around athlete of the world, by virtue of his achievements at the last Olympic games, has revived the *old familiar agitation anent 'profession-*alizing' college ball players.

"One look at the baseball records suffices to show that many major league stars now in the spotlight at-some time or other played with a varsity nine. Perhaps it would have blossomed into a major league dentist, but for the fact that I loved the game of baseball. I attended Cooper Dental college and Washington university at Irvington, Cal., and the chances are I might have gone along with my nose to the grindstone utterly unmindful of the good things to be had once success was achieved in baseball togs.

SCHOOLS FURNISH GOOD HURLERS.

"Hastily scanning the names of stars in the National and American leagues —former college men—I am pleased to learn that America's institutions of learning have supported major league baseball with enough stars to stock an entire team. Pause a moment to consider the talent available for the pitch*ing department. There's Christy Math*ewson, of the Giants, once the slab idol of Bucknell fame; "Doc" White, the veteran southpaw of the Chicago White Sox, who came up from Georgetown; Jack Coombs, iron man right-hander of the Athletics, who treated the Chicago Cubs to three successive beatings during the world series of 1910.

Jack broke in a ter attending Colby. Two of his pals were Eddie Mack a wonderful machine, "Chief" Bender and Eddie Plank, must be labeled "ex-collegians." Bender learned his lesson at Carlisle and Plank won his while twirling for Gettys*burg. Many great players have come out* of the University of Notre Dame, including "Big Ed" Reulbach of the Cubs, Jimmy Lavender, of the Cubs, a right hander, is from Georgia Tech. Ray Collins, southpaw of the Boston Red Sox, starter his career at the University of Vermont. Here we have a slab staff of eight admitted world beaters.

"Back of the plate I might name as two foremost receivers Bill Carrigan, of the Boston Red Sox, who got his start at Holy Cross, and John Meyers, of the New York Giants, a good Indian, who starred at Dartmouth. Thus the batteries are accounted for.

PICKS INFIELD OF COLLEGIANS.

"College baseball has furnished a corking major league field with Hall Chase, a Santa Clara product now a member of the Chicago White Sox, as an ideal first baseman. Eddie Collins, of the Athletics, a former Columbia star, is the boy for second base with his teammate, Jack Barry, a Holy Cross product, the selec*tion for shortstopping duties.*

"Until last August, when Harry Lord was shifted from third base, it would have been impossible to name a superior to the White Sox star and former Boston American captain. Lord came from Bates. In his stead for third base I would name Eddie Grant, of the Cincinnati Reds. Grant's playing at Harvard won for him a chance in the ma*jors.*"

A unique feature of the sporting arrangements at the 1915 Panama-Pacific fair at San Francisco will be a huge ice hippodrome costing $200,000 for ice sports, while by special processes will be fit for use even during the heat of the summer sun.

Price Hurls Against Pels

NEW ORLEANS, La., July 18.—Greatly encouraged by the improved class of ball the Pelicans played in Thursday's ten-inning game with Atlanta, Manager Frank is out to cop Friday's battle, and to do so will use Brenton on the slab. This boy is Frank's most consistent worker and he is expected to make it two in a row from the Crackers.

Gilbert Price and Chapman is the announced battery for Atlanta. Price has not gone especially well his last few times out, and Manager Smith figures it is about time for him to come to himself. He has the goods when right, and will try to demonstrate that he is right on Friday.

Tennis Stars Lose

KANSAS CITY, July 18.—The defeat of Charles Spears and H. A. Conger, of Oklahoma, by Hubert Allen and H. Robertson, of this city, in the preliminary doubles, was the *surprise in the Mis*souri Valley tennis tournament. Allen and Robertson played a strong and steady game and ebat the Oklahoma champion and his partner in straight sets.

LOOKS ROSY FOR GEORGIANS ON GRIDIRON THIS SEASON

Coach W. A. Cunningham *talked hope*fully of Georgia's athletic prospects for 1913 football season in the Athens Herald of Wednesday, speaking of the fact that while four good men would certainly be lost to the team, there are other good men who have improved with experience, and still others in sight from prep teams.

The four men lost are the two guards, Lucas and Peacock, men of all-southern caliber; Bubbles Covington, the heady center, and Bowden, a lion of the backfield. The first three graduate; Bowden is playing professional ball with Cordele in the Empire State league.

The men on whom cunningham is banking besides those of last year's varsity are:

Conyers, a 200-pound guard who has scrubbed for two years against two all-southern guards, and has had some knowledge of football beaten into him; Crump, who has been rapidly developing as an end; Peacock, as end or center, a heavy fast man, whose basketball ability gives him an advantage at the new game; Broyles, who has for two years been working in the backfield; W. H. Owens, of the Eleventh cavalry, who has moved to Athens, and will enter college, and Brown, a 200-pound applicant for guard position.

It is also rumored that DeLaperiere, the hard fighting center of the 1912 team, will return. If "Dilly" gets back into harness he will bolster up the center of the line wonderfully. The men have confidence in his fighting ability, and would well when he is back*ing up the line.*

The doubtful men are cOnklin, an end, whose tackling is the hardest in the south, and Paddock, the fast quarterback. Cunningham seems to be of the opinion that the success of the team depends upon the return of Paddock, whose steady work and untiring efforts mean so much to the team. Dave will doubtless be back when the whistle blows in the fall.

As to the assistant coach proposition. Although Wahoo has not yet gotten his formal release from the athletic association authorities, it is probable that he will get his release. Already there are a score of applicants for his position, and no one knows as yet who will assist Cunningham to round his bunch of material into shape.

Cunningham is coming to Atlanta soon to confer with Bob McWhorter, the captain of the 1913 team, as to new material and as to the assistant coach proposition. Bob, the mainstay of Georgia's offense, is summering in Atlanta, working at the state capitol. He does say what he thinks of next year's prospects, but he doesn't look at all worried.

Boxers To Meet

Jack Britton, welterweight champion, will meet Jack Dillon, middleweight champion, in a ten-round bout at Milwaukee on August 4, according to an announcement made by Promoter Jack Curley.

Star Racers To Handicap Crack Rivals

Six Riders on Track at One Time in Motordrome Races Friday Night – Four Good Events Are Booked

With six racers flying around the motordrome saucer the Friday night program at the speedway appears to be the *class of anything yet shown. Never be*fore have more than four riders been on the track at the same time, and when you get six in line, there is bound to be some thrilling moments.

The big event of the evening, the handicap at four miles, will have Resel, Lockner and Shields starting one lap ahead of Richards, Graves and Mc-Neil. Richards, Graves and McNeil have proven the biggest winners at the track, but to keep up their winning streak they will certainly have to go some. A handicap of one lap is mighty large and faster time than anything yet shown will have to be hung up if the scratch boys wish to overtake their rivals.

Besides the big handicap feature there will be the motordrome purse at two miles, the Atlanta sweepstakes at three miles and an invitation race between four of the racers. The more the racers ride the board track the more accustomed they become to it, and there may be a new record hung up at most any old time.

Here is the list of events for Friday night:

MOTORDROME PURSE.
(2-mile heats, 2-mile final.)
First Heat—Graves, Resel and Shields.
Second Heat—McNeil, Lockner and Lewis.
Third Heat—Richards, Swartz, Lo*ther and Glenn.*
Final—Two miles.

ATLANTA SWEEPSTAKES.
(2-mile heats, 3-mile final.)
First Heat—McNeil, Swartz, Luther and Lewis.
Second Heat—Richards, Graves and Resel.
Third Heat—Lockner, Shields and Glenn.
Final—Three miles.

INVITATION RACE.
Luther, Lewis, Swartz and Glenn.

DIXIE HANDICAP.
(Four Miles.)
Handicap Men—Resel, Lockner and Shields. (One lap handicap.)
Scratch Men—Richards, Graves and McNeil.

CHANGES FOR JUST A DAY

The changes in the Southern league race on Thursday were immaterial. Both Mobile and Montgomery are unchanged, as the former lost a double-header and the latter tied with Birmingham. Atlanta lost, but Chattanooga lost also, the only relative change being that Birmingham went one point ahead of Chattanooga and is 2 1-2 games behind Atlanta.

In the National both the Giants and the Phillies split a double-header. McGraw used Froome and Demaree for his battery while Doolin used Alexander and Seaton.

The Athletics and the Naps remained stationary relatively, both teams dropping back one on account of a defeat.

THE SPORTLIGHT
BY GRANTLAND RICE

Manager of a pennant-winning world series ball club in October—cut adrift in July.

Of such is our national game.

Jake Stahl caught in incorrectly both ways. He was handed a fine ball club last spring—the fortunes of war were with him—and he bounded to the top. He did good work such as he had to do—which wasn't much with such a club.

This spring his machine crumpled up and Stahl the Wonder was Stahl the Cheese. The fortunes of war were against him, so that no manager could have done much better. He hadn't a chance to break through the iron barrier of Fate.

QUEER SHIFTS.

Snodgrass and Fletcher, the execrated of that last series, are leading the Giant attack and defense today—the two stars of the club. Stahl, the leader of the triumphant assault, is released and through.

Stahl was a fair manager with Washington and a fair manager with Boston—neither a wonder nor a dub. The combined Fates of Stahl and Chance show that after all the men on the field play their part in the big summer drama as well as the directing chief.

Baseball is what it is because so many different cogs are needed and required to work in harmony before results are ever achieved.

Managerial success lies not only in leading but in building up a club. Of the two tests the latter is the one that tells the story over the full distance.

SHIFTING THE LAUREL.

A. S. B., of Washington, D. C., has a just complaint coming. He states that he is amassing a great weariness from the universal usage which says that "such and such pitcher won the game," or that "such and such a pitcher has won nine straight."

"What in Heaven' name," he adds, "were the other eight men doing? Don't they belong at all? There isn't a score sheet that doesn't show if it were not for a number of great plays by the outfield on infield the game would have been lost."

THE PITCHING PERCENTAGE.

A. S. B. is about correct. John McGraw is a pretty fair judge of baseball stuff, and he puts the pitching at 30 per cent, less than a third of the ensemble complete.

A pitcher like young Carrol Brown, with the Athletics, can hold opposing teams to five runs and then tear two out of every three starts. He recently gave 15 passes and allowed 10 hits, yet won his game. On the other hand, Ray Fisher, with the Yanks, has pitched 12 good games out of 16 attempts, winning one and losing 15.

OTHERS AROUND.

Yes, there are one or two others around, in addition to the pitcher. A man of Johnson's mind is exceptional. When he is working he averages about 60 to 75 per cent of his club. But, for a general average, 30 per cent isn't far astray. Good pitching frequently loses and bad pitching frequently wins; so the test isn't always in the net results of the day's score.

ANOTHER ONE.

A. B. S. has another query to unfurl. He wants to know why all ball players, prize fighters and other athletes keep clean shaven. No quitting stuff, he adds; but "straight goods."

Far be it from us to spoof, josh or kid a matter of such serious import. There are probably several reasons. One is custom or habit. Another is that a growth of whiskers lends an appearance of added age, and the one specter of the athlete is old Doc Time.

There was an epoch when the soup-strainer was popular among ball players. Some one recently flashed a picture of Griff on the Washington leader, taken in 1886, when he was supposed to be just breaking in. He had a willowy mustache, and his only alibi was that he began shaving at eleven years of age.

"How about Cobb, Jackson and Speaker for an outfield?" pipes a voice from the offside trail. We don't know just what sort of an outfield they would be, but it would certainly be one grand little ball club, if not a fairly strong league.

THE PITCHING SENSATION

Amateurs Play In Double Bill

Perhaps the fastest exhibition of amateur baseball that local fans will have an opportunity to witness this season will be staged at Ponce de Leon park Saturday afternoon, when the two teams leading the Sunday School league will meet for a double header. In the absence of Billy Smith's Crackers on their invasion of the western end of the Southern circuit, devotees of the game are expected to provide the largest crowd of the Sunday school season for the Saturday afternoon games.

The First Baptist team, leading the league with twelve straight victories and no defeats, has been playing such ball as to attract sidewise glances from the pennant races of the larger leagues, and is determined to add two more wins Saturday. The S. V. D. club, in second place with seven victories and three defeats, is equally determined to break up the winning streak of the Baptists. Both teams will be in classiest condition for the double header Saturday, which is scheduled to begin at 3 o'clock.

Pitcher Wanted By Palatka Club

The Palatka Baseball team is desirous of securing a good pitcher. They are playing good semi-professional ball in Palatka, and they want a man who can handle fast semi-pro teams.

Any one who thinks he can fill the bill can get more information by corresponding with E. P. Roberts, the manager of the team.

Pelican Boss Wants Carroll

Molesworth couldn't see Charlie Frank at all when Dutchman requested the loan of Carroll for the series between the Pels and Barons, which series will be brought to a close today.

The Dutchman is in bad for players, having a bunch of cripples on his list so he applied to Molesworth for Carroll.

Molesworth wasn't strong for the thing at all. He figured, "Why should I give my players to the opposition for them to try and beat my club. Nothing doing in that line for me. I sympathize with Charlie's hard luck but I can't take my men and hand them over to the opposition and have them to try to beat my club. We are in the race for the ... and we want to win all the games ... can possibly get away with, and ... players to the opposition is not good business."

Moley couldn't see Frank's request at all.—Birmingham Exchange.

For twelve years teams have been entered for Davis cup play emblematic of the world's championship as follows: England, 12; United States, 10; Australasia, 8; France, 2; Belgium, 2; Germany, 2; Canada 1 and South Africa, 1. In these competitions seventy-eight matches in singles have been played and seventeen matches in doubles not counting those during the preliminaries of this year's contests.

Mack May Lose Says Johnson

NEW YORK, July 18.—Although neither the American nor the National league pennant is the personal property of any team as yet, Ban Johnson and other members of the national commission are beginning to plan for the world's series of 1913. The American league president during his recent visit here said:

"While the Athletics now have a big load, nothing is certain in baseball. I notice that Mack still is seeking pitchers, so I'm safe in saying he is not ready to sit back and wait for the National league winners to laugh. Cleveland, Washington and Chicago are very much in the race.

"The second division clubs have a habit of proving troublesome to the leaders in the second half of the season and you never can tell when one or more of them is going to start a winning spurt. Boston and New York have both had more than their share of handicaps and I look for them to get going in earnest soon. Personally I have great faith in Frank Chance and believe that he is building up a strong club for next year."

The entire program of sporting events on the German Olympics to be held in Berlin in 1916, will be run off in eight days, two less than at Stockholm last year.

CLUBS PLAY 20 INNINGS

ADRIAN, Mich., July 18.—Battle Creek and Adrian, the leading teams in the Southern Michigan league, played twenty innings to a tie, each scoring one run before darkness ended the struggle. Manager Jenkins, of Adrian, in the fourth inning singled and advancing on a sacrifice hit, and a passed ball was scored on a sacrifice fly. JOURNAL WANT AD HOROSCOPE

JULY 19.

A peculiar thing about the men and women born on this birthdate is that while they are happy and comfortable during the day, when night comes they become melancholy, depressed and discouraged. These people should be much out of doors, and special attention should be given to exercise and simple rules of health.

They are inclined to attacks of indigestion. They should avoid taking medicines as much as possible and depend upon fresh air and exercise and simple diet for their ailments.

Worry will bring on sickness with people of this birthdate, and they should rise above every temptation to worry, knowing that worry is the most weakening thing that they can do. They should not marry people of their own birthdate and will be happiest with those born in November or in the latter part of February.

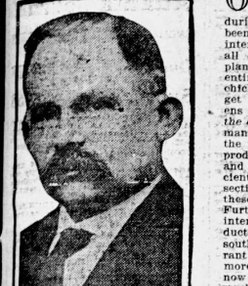
Poultry and Eggs Throughout the South



ONE of the most encouraging things connected with the poultry business in the south during this past year that has been noticeable to those who are interested is the fact that nearly all of the large western packing plants have buyers throughout the entire south scraping up every chicken and egg they can possibly get their hands on. These chickens and eggs are mostly shipped to the east. This is encouraging from many different standpoints. In the first place it shows that these products are becoming very scarce and they cannot be had in sufficient quantities throughout the sections that have been producing these products in great quantities. Furthermore it shows us that more interest is being paid in the production of these products in the south and there is enough to warrant these packers beginning to pay more attention to what we are now producing. It is making a market will be made for them right before. It is bringing money from the east in the south from a source that we have never before had.

On the other hand it shows that when we produce these products a market will be made for them right at our door. The little we may not get now the price that we are entitled to it will be increased every year and the more we learn about this business and the better we make our products naturally the better prices we will command and the greater the demand will be for them. This is a state of affairs that has never yet been reached before, and when you see the western packers beginning to pay attention to our markets you can then begin to realize what an opportunity we have here and of what value the poultry products of the south would amount to if we would pay more attention to them and produce them in greater quantities. The world is growing to such an extent that all the large cities that it is forcing many of the people who supply the market with these products to get out and hunt them up with more energy than ever. Almost the entire Tennessee product has been bought up for years by eastern buyers and as they are now invading Georgia, South Carolina and Alabama it means that we will soon have an established market price for our products and buyers with the ready cash to pay for them, different from what we have ever had before. It is surprising to see how eager these packers are for our products and naturally the greater competition the better price we can command.

I am glad to see this state of affairs coming as it will mean a great diversity of crops throughout the entire south and means that we will have more things than cotton to bring us in a revenue every year. The only thing we will have to do now is to furnish these packers with a quality of goods they desire and a reasonable price will be demanded and paid for them. The city people must have this food, and the packers with their ice plants and surrounding conditions under which they can handle these products are in a better position to take care of the surplus than the small producer, and it is something we have needed throughout the south for a long time. As this line gets started it can rest assured it will grow and competition will become stronger every year and better markets built up for our products. With the opportunities we have throughout the entire south for producing these products there is no reason why Georgia should not ship every week many cars of poultry and eggs to the east the same as Tennessee is now doing, and that will come when this is accomplished. At present as these products are not produced in great quantities they are put up in small lots and are centered at one shipping point or packed and shipped forward to the east. It shows that there must be a great per cent of profit in these products or these packing concerns would not be paying the attention to it that they are now doing, and as these conveniences are now had we should co-operate with the buyers and by working together with them we can build up a valuable industry for this section of country.

Yours very truly,

George W. Adams

The Claude E. Sims company, through J. R. Groover and S. G. Munn, has sold for the Mitchell Cole company an apartment house property at Nos. 81-5 East ...enth street, J. W. Garland, of ...tersville, was the purchaser, and ...e consideration was $40,000.

The property is on the north side of the street and consists of a two-story brick building and another building in the rear on a lot 25x112 to Brooks alley. The rental is $110 a month.

SMALL SALES.

Irwin L. Harling has sold for Mrs. Wilhelmina Cassierer to A. F. Kuhn No. 61 Mell street, at the corner of McLendon, a residence on a lot 125x147, for $5,800, and for Joseph Buchman to a customer, No. 2 Wellington street, a six-room house on a lot 118x165, for $3,500.

The Burdett Realty company has sold for Mrs. Teresa Bryant to an out-of-town buyer No. 97 Greenwood avenue, a six-room bungalow on a lot 50x230. No consideration was mentioned.

APARTMENT LEASES.

The Ponce de Leon apartment house, at Peachtree and Ponce de Leon avenue, will be ready for occupancy on September 1. There are two stores and 212 rooms and a third of the rooms have already been leased. Several applications have been made for the stores.

The building will be managed by a superintendent who will have his office in the building. The minimum rate of rental is $25 a month for each room.

The space will be rented in single rooms and in suites of two or more rooms. There has been quite a number of applications for the bachelor suites.

The announcement of rates and details of the building is interesting as affording the pioneer apartment house of its type in Atlanta.

BUILDING APPLICATION.

Application for a building permit was made Friday by C. H. Johnson for a two-story and basement reinforced concrete building at No. 757 Whitehall street.

The building will cost $10,000, and occupy a lot 75x100, with railroad frontage. It will be used for light manufacturing.

COUNTY WORK.

The county has an interesting schedule of work in the city which is either being completed or will be started shortly.

The county is now at work on the Butler street sewer, which will do away with objectionable odors from Tenth street at Jackson through the ball park as far south as Forrest avenue. A big sewer will take care of two prongs of an objectionable branch.

The county has started at Tenth street and is now working down to a point at Myrtle street. During this strong next, it will work in a southeasterly direction through the ball park to Forrest avenue. The branch as far as its bill park will be completed this summer.

The county is now making ready to start on the sewer pavement on West Mitchell street from the viaduct to Davis street. It will finish the North Moreland avenue pavement in ten days, and is now ready for the Georgia avenue work, which will probably be started next week. The last of the work on Marietta street will be completed in ten days after affording a smooth pavement from town to the river. Work will be started on the West Simpson street pavement from Ashby street west to the railroad in about thirty days.

GRAMBLING CASE DECIDED.

By decision of the supreme court, Friday, the decision of the superior court of Fulton county was approved in sustaining a demurrer brought by attorneys for Forrest and George Adair against the petition of Mrs. Kate G. Hardin for a re-sale of the Gramling residence at the corner of West Baker and West Peachtree streets.

The ground upon which the lower court sustained the demurrer was that the petitioner had been guilty of laches, that she had delayed too long to bring her suit. The sale of the residence was made at auction by Sheriff Mangum on a fi fa on January 14, 1908. The petition was filed January 13, 1912.

The petition itself alleged on behalf of Mrs. Hardin as one of the Gramling family heirs that she had bid $50,000 to the sheriff, but that the sheriff disregarded her bid and knocked the property down to Gordon Adair for $48,000. She went to the sheriff next day and offered to pay the $50,000, she alleged. He refused to let her have the property. Her petition recited that the value of the property was not less than $100,000. She asked that the former sale be declared null and that a re-sale be ordered.

SUBDIVISION PLANS.

There is a good deal of quiet preparation for the future going on just now. Owners are brushing up their records for available material to put on the market later on.

Foster & Robson are looking ahead as far as next spring. They are now preparing a subdivision of the Dahlgren property, about forty acres inside the city, located on South Moreland avenue, the East Lake and Decatur car line. Dahlgren, Vannoy and Fair streets. The property will be offered in lots next spring.

CREDIT FOR SALE.

In the mention Thursday of the sale of a tract of railroad frontage on the Central railroad at Mickleberry street credit should have been given Turman, Smith, Calhoun & B. Turman having made the sale. The papers went to Cuba Thursday.

There are about three acres in the tract, with 300 feet of railroad frontage.

BOARD RACE.

Harris G. White, at present vice president of the Atlanta Real Estate board, will be its next president.

An election will be held Friday night at the annual dinner of the board at Chamberlin's. Charles P. Glover is president of the board, but the by-laws prevent his re-election.

Mr. White took a very active part in the organization of the real estate association, which afterwards became the real estate board.

PUT THE OIL WHERE THE SQUEAK IS

CONSTIPATION, SICK-HEADACHE, STOMACH TROUBLE, WEAK HEART, VERY OFTEN CAUZED BY LAZY LIVER

LET PODOLAX AWAKEN YOUR SLEEPY LIVER

Many a person whose only trouble is a lazy liver is today suffering the worries and discouragement of being half-sick all the time. Indigestion, sick-headache, stomach trouble, weak heart—these are the names given to common diseases which prompt and sensible treatment of the liver will drive away. Put the oil where the squeak is—help the liver.

But you mustn't try to BLAST for health, dynamiting the bowels with dangerous calomel or violent saline purgatives: castor oil and nasty tasting mineral waters are no better, for they merely flush the bowels—wring them so dry of vitality that they are prostrated for days, leaving you constipated and far worse off than before.

PODOLAX is the common-sense remedy for health-building, because it sweeps out impurities quick and clean as a new broom. It stimulates every function of the liver, stomach and bowels—builds them back to lusty strength; and PODOLAX tastes good.

Get a bottle of PODOLAX on your way home; take a little at bedtime. You'll be smiling tomorrow.

A BIG JOB

"It is as impossible for him to recover as it is to empty the ocean."

These were the doctor's words to the partner of Andrew C. Larsen, of Sorenson & Larsen, Salt Lake City, Utah.

Larsen was down with Bright's Disease. was water logged, having been tapped twice, and the doctor advised his partner to fix up his affairs. This was in 1904.

The treatment was changed to Fulton's Renal Compound, and in March, 1905, patient was back in business, to the surprise of his physician and everyone else.

As to permanence, a letter from Larsen dated February, 1910, six years later, said: "I am in perfect health—haven't had a sick day for several years. The Compound cured me and did it right."

We have almost daily reports from new cases either well or recovering under Fulton's Renal Compound. If the books are true no chronic cases are recovered under anything else. If you have Bright's Disease you owe it to yourself and family to try Fulton's Renal Compound before giving up. It can be had at Edmondson Drug Co., 11 N. Broad street, and 106 N. INDUSTRIAL WORKERS FIGHT WITH SOLDIERS

Police Called Out to Quell Near-Riot on Streets of Seattle

(By Associated Press.)

SEATTLE, Wash., July 18.—Three enlisted men of the United States army were stabbed last night when a number of soldiers and sailors who participated in the military and naval potlatch parade were attacked by a crowd of men attending a street meeting of Industrial Workers of the World.

The soldiers were only slightly wounded. According to the account given to the police, the soldiers passed the crowd where a woman speaker was abusing the army and navy. As they passed a man shouted:

"There goes three soldiers now."

The crowd at once attacked the soldiers and a free fight was on, during which the army men sustained a number of cuts with pocketknives.

Two sailors from the Pacific reserve fleet saw the attack on the soldiers and went to their aid. A riot call was turned in and the police restored order.

LEGAL NOTICES.

GEORGIA, Fulton County.—

Notice is hereby given that on August 4th, 1913, or as soon thereafter as may be practicable, the undersigned, will apply to the judge of the superior court of Fulton county, Ga., at the court house in said county, for an order authorizing him as guardian for Richard R. Corley and Myrtice M. Corley, to sell for the purpose of reinvestment, the following property of his said wards, towit:

An undivided one-eighth (⅛) remainder interest each in the following real estate:

All that tract or parcel of land lying and being in the city of Atlanta, Ga., known as Number 153 Randolph street and more particularly described as follows: Beginning at a point one hundred and ten (110) feet, (by the original lines) north of the northeast corner of Randolph street and Houston street and running thence east one hundred and twenty-five (125) feet, thence north sixty-three (63) feet, thence west one hundred and twenty-five (125) feet, and thence south along the east side of Randolph street sixty-three (63) feet to the place of beginning.

The reason for making said application is that the improvements thereon are old and depreciating in value and its condition will necessitate the expenditure of considerable money to make it conform to comfortable modern residences. Said property is no longer desirable as white residence property and is rapidly depreciating as such. Said property will become more expensive continually to keep in order and in repair.

JAMES BANKS,

Guardian for Richard R. Corley and Myrtice M. Corley.

G. A. K. STEVENS, Attorney.

REVOLUTION IN CHINA BACKED BY JAPANESE?

Peking Reports Say Japs Advance Funds and Lend Army Officers

(By Associated Press.)

PEKING, July 18.—The situation brought about by the rebellion in the southern provinces of China has improved somewhat today, regarded from the northern point of view. Fewer soldiers have deserted the government of provisional President Yuan Shi Kai than authorities had anticipated.

Provisional President Yuan Shi-Kai had a long conference with the loyal generals today. Plans for the suppression of the rebellion were discussed.

The belief prevails very generally in Peking that the Japanese are financing the revolution in the southern provinces, and some of the newspapers assert that forty Japanese army officers are with the rebel troops.

Mr. J. W. Brooks, traveling representative of The Atlanta Journal, says: "For two years I have carried in my grip a bottle of Nuxcara, and would not think of going out on the road without it. I consider it the most wonderful discovery in medicine. The number of people who suffer with indigestion and dyspepsia, the terrible distress they suffer, no one knows but those who have had experience with it. Millionaire Gives 20,000 Children Grand Free Picnic

(By Associated Press.)

ATCHISON Kan., July 18.—Twenty thousand Kansas children are guests today of Balie P. Waggener, a millionaire railroad man, at his annual children's picnic.

All the expenses, even including railroad fare to Atchison, are borne by Mr. Waggener. The day's program includes a distribution of toys and flowers, an automobile parade, land and water athletic contests, baseball games, exhibition drill by the United States troops from Fort Leavenworth, and day and night fireworks.

Governor Hodges and staff and three companies of the Kansas national guard are here for the outing.

THE HOUSE APPROVES THE DUCKTOWN COMMISSION

By a vote of 103 to 15, the house Friday morning adopted the resolution of Barry Wright, of Floyd, asking that the governor be empowered to appoint a commission whose duty it shall be to decide the differences between certain copper companies and farming interests in their vicinity.

The plants referred to are those of the Tennessee Copper company, at Ducktown, with which the state has had an agreement for the protection of the crops. This agreement expires in October and owing to the fact that certain farmers are claiming damage while on the other hand the company declares the gases or fumes are kept down to a minimum, it was thought advisable to have this board created at this session of the legislature in order to effect an equitable adjustment between the contending parties.

MAN TRIES OUT THIS GUARANTEE GETS HIS MONEY BACK, BUT---

He Bought a Bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone, Then Took it Back and Asked for His Money and Got It.

A man recently tried out the guarantee which every druggist gives with every bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone. He bought a bottle and then went back to the drug store and said the medicine hadn't helped him.

The druggist just reached into his cash register and took out a half dollar, the price of Dodson's Liver Tone, and handed it back to the gentleman.

But the man didn't take the money. He owned up that he was just trying the guarantee and as a matter of fact he had found Dodson's Liver Tone the best remedy for constipation and biliousness he had ever tried. "Why," he said, "my wife wouldn't be without a bottle in the house for anything. It's the best thing in the world for the whole family, and the only medicine that I would take or give to my children for a lazy liver."

Every druggist in town sells Dodson's Liver Tone and guarantees it to start the liver without violence. It is taking the place of calomel everywhere.—(Advt.)

Coming Out Into the Open

It was not so many years ago that, by some, advertising was considered unethical from a business standpoint.

Many of the finest old houses held aloof, saying that they didn't have to advertise. Even today there are some business and professional men so bound by custom and tradition that they have not yet availed themselves of the advantages of advertising.

By so much as these customs still hold, by just so much is the public deprived of knowing all about those professions and businesses.

The most successful way, and the only honest way to deal with the public, is to "play the game out in the open."

If there are true and interesting reasons why the public should buy something from So & So, then So & So should be glad of a chance to say so over and over again through the medium of THE JOURNAL, which is read by everybody, and in which everybody has CONFIDENCE.

PHOTOGRAPHER'S FLASH STARTS PANIC AT MOVIE

Nearly 100 Persons, Many Children, Injured in Stampede That Followed

NEWARK, N. J., July 18.—Nearly 100 persons, many of them children, were injured, only two of them seriously, in a panic at a moving picture exhibition here last night. The stampede followed the setting off of a flash light to take a photograph of the crowd.

The exhibition was being given by the state board of health in conjunction with the Newark Anti-Tuberculosis association and hundreds of foreigners were among the 1,500 or more persons present. The failure of the foreigners to understand a notice flashed upon the screen that the picture would be taken, is believed to account for the panic.

tion as to whether the president would accept Mr. Adams. The belief still exists that, though Senator Bacon inclines to favor Mr. Adams for the district attorney's place, another man finally will be named.

No postoffice nominations came in today, and some of the Georgia congressmen who have complained because few, if any, of their recommendations have gone through, were just a bit more vexed. In a number of Georgia cases the congressmen profess profound ignorance and mystification as to the delay in their recommendations. Just at this time, however, it may be stated on good authority that the Dublin postoffice is the only one that is giving the postoffice department any trouble. The nature of the charges against V. I. Stanley, recommended by Congressman Hughes, is such as to cause the postmaster general to give it most careful consideration before finally acting. In the meantime Congressman Hughes and the friends of Mr. Stanley are strengthening their indorsements, while the opposition is not less active. The files of Mr. Stanley's paper have been read, re-read, synopsized and briefed, until it will require the services of a Philadelphia lawyer to understand the case fully.

Minister to Ecuador, Charles H. Hartman, of Montana.

United States judge, northern California, Maurice T. Dooling, of California.

BOY IS GROUND UP IN TAN BARK MILL

BUFORD, Ga., July 18.—Shirley Kemp, eighteen years of age, met with a horrible death here yesterday, when he fell into a bark mill at the Bona Allen tanyard and was ground almost to pieces.

The belt that drives the mill had come off, and Kemp started to replace it. He stepped on a piece of bark, stumbled, and fell. The revolving teeth of the mill killed him instantly.
